BRADSHAW ASKED TO PAY STATE $13,167 AT ONCE

Demand Made on Former Warehouse Commissioner for Alleged Deficit Said to Be Shown by Audit.

REQUEST BY AID TO ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Letter Lists Alleged Unauthorized Overpayments to Employes; Threat of Suit if Settlement Is Not Made.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 26.—A demand was made today upon James T. Bradshaw, former Warehouse Commissioner, and his bondsmen, that the sum of $13,167.31 be paid immediately to the State Treasurer as the amount of a deficit shown by the audit of Bradshaw's accounts while Warehouse Commissioner, in a letter directed to Bradshaw from the Attorney-General's department. The letter states that, unless the deficit is met immediately, suit will be brought to recover such amount. The letter to Bradshaw, sent by Assistant Attorney-General Robert J. Smith, follows:

"Dear Sir: Your books and accounts as Warehouse Commissioner have recently been audited by the Auditor of this State. This audit appears to show that you paid without authority of law for overtime services for the years 1919 and 1920 the sum of $1756.55; for traveling expenses for yourself outside of the State for the years 1918 and 1920 the sum of $326.08; that you charged and collected bills from the State and also from the private inspection fund for the same items of expense in 1921 the amount of $96.65; that you paid to your employes expenses of traveling outside of the State in 1919 and 1920 the amount of $316.58; that for salaries for yourself and your employes in 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920 and 1921 you paid $6184.20 in excess of that authorized by law; that you paid without authority of law in 1917 and 1918 premiums on official bonds to the amount of $22.66; that you had $4426.47 on hand due the State April 30, 1921, which has not been paid to the State Treasurer; that the total amount shown by your books to be due the State at this time is $13,167.31.

"This department has been authorized to take the necessary steps to make this collection.

"Therefore, this is a demand that said funds be immediately paid to the State Treasurer of this State.

"Your compliance with this request will preclude suit being brought against you and your bondsmen. A demand also is this day being made upon each of your bondsmen.

"Please advise what disposition you will make of the matter."

Bradshaw's bondsmen include S. B. Cook, Jefferson City; W. T. Kemper, Kansas City, and T. J. Pendegast, Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Dismissal of Chicago policemen in wholesale lots is presaged in official circles today in connection with the Federal investigation of violations of the prohibition laws.

Following announcement Saturday by Chief of Police Fitzmorris that he believed half the police force of 5000 men may be involved in liquor law violations, Charles F. Clyne, United States District Attorney, promised his co-operation to Fitzmorris and today is to furnish a list of all officers who have fallen under Federal investigation in connection with whisky running and bootlegging.

Chief Fitzmorris has announced his intention of dismissing every man implicated in liquor deals and claims he has a list of men that can replace hundreds of policemen if it becomes necessary to dismiss that many.

In a statement the Chief termed prohibition a failure until the liquor was cut off at its source of supply.

Many More Expected at Indianapolis Today—9000 Have Died in Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 26.—Rattling drumsticks and the squealing of ancient fifes announced the entry of the Grand Army of the Republic into Indianapolis today for its fifty-first annual encampment. Many of the veterans were bowed with years, but many others preserved their military carriage as they marched behind drum corps.

Today was devoted to the registration of the visiting veterans.

Official reports show that since last year's encampment death has taken 9000 members of the organization, but yesterday there were 10,000 members of the Grand Army and affiliated orders here and it was expected that the attendance would be nearly as large as that of the last meeting.

Special cars brought members from Oklahoma and Kansas and a special train was due today to bring the veterans from Missouri.

READING OF THE TAX BILL IS STARTED IN SENATE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The tax bill was taken up today in the Senate for reading after Senator Simmons, Democrat, of North Carolina, had refused unanimous consent to begin consideration of the measure for committee amendments. Senator Simmons and Senator Underwood of Alabama, the Democratic leader, declared there was no disposition on the part of the minority to delay the measure.

The Senate clerks began reading the 294-page document.

Senator Simmons prior to the convening of the Senate described the bill as "a miserable, makeshift arrangement" and said today he was considering proposing an entirely new measure contemplating a peacetime taxation policy.

YOUTH DAMAGES AIRPLANE

Climbs Over Machine in Forest Park, Making Holes in Wings.

An airplane owned jointly by Elmer Dempsey of 3158 Allen avenue and W. A. Anderson of Grand and Park avenues, was damaged $200 yesterday when a deaf and dumb youth, who wanted to get to Fulton, Mo., in a hurry, climbed over the wings and tried to start the propellor while the machine was parked in the aviation field near the hangars in Forest Park.

Anderson went on the field in an automobile as the youth was trying to start the propellor, pulling it around, however, the wrong way. Anderson took the youth to the Mounted District Police Station, where he talked with him in the deaf and dumb language. Anderson having been an instructor at one time in that language. After learning the boy's story he refused to prosecute and he was released. The youth said he only had $7 and had come all the way from Paducah, Ky., and wanted to get to Fulton to enter a school. In climbing over the wings his foot went through the canvas.

WOMAN AID OF KLEAGLE CLARKE NOT TO RESIGN

Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler Declares Clarke, in Quitting Klan Office, Has Shown Himself Weak-Kneed.

HIS LETTER SAID SHE WOULD BE THROUGH

Tone of Her Statement to Atlanta Newspaper Indicates Quarrel Between Two, Associated for Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, chief kluckster, or head of the newly established women's division of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., has announced that she will refuse to be eliminated from the order through the action of Edward Young Clarke, Imperial KlEagle, or chief organizer, in resigning his position.

Clarke, as told in an Associated Press dispatch published yesterday, announced Saturday night that he had written to William J. Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the order, urging that his resignation be accepted, and stating that his resignation would "automatically" remove Mrs. Tyler from her connection with the work, as she was simply his chief of staff.

The Post-Dispatch and the New York World recently published the fact, shown by Atlanta police and court records, that Clarke and Mrs. Tyler were arrested together and fined on a charge of disorderly conduct, in Atlanta in 1919. Clarke is separated from his wife, and is making payments to her under a court order.

Publication of these facts brought the demand, from some points where the Ku Klux Klan has been established, that Clarke and Mrs. Tyler withdraw from their important executive positions in the order. Clarke's letter to Wizard Simmons, which was sent to Atlanta newspapers by Clarke Saturday night, is his answer to this demand. But Mrs. Tyler is not willing to quit.

Clarke's Reference to Woman.

Clarke, in his letter urging the acceptance of his resignation, said regarding Mrs. Tyler:

"I am unwilling to remain longer at my post in the work, for in doing so it will necessitate the keeping of my business associate, Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, on the firing line of the klan, because I am neither physically nor financially able to carry forward the work successfully without her assistance. Regardless of her statement to the Atlanta klan that she was willing to make any sacrifice if they so desire, I personally am not willing for her to do so, as it is the enemy's desire to crush me through cowardly and malicious attacks on her personal character, believing full well that if they can crush both she and I they will have won a substantial victory in their fight on the klan.

"In view of this fact, if I stay on in the work and keep Mrs. Tyler on the firing line, there will be no depth to which the enemy will not stoop to accomplish their despicable purposes. Of course, I know through inside information that the personal character of practically every leader of the work will be attacked, but they can stand it and come through at much less cost than if a woman is forced to stand and face their villainous and lying attacks. As you know, I have been closely associated in business with Mrs. Tyler for several years, and I found her to be honorable and dependable and a woman of the very highest type in every way, and the malicious charges which have recently been made against her in the public press are absolutely false. In my getting out of the work, therefore, she will automatically be out of same, as your agreement is with me and she is simply my chief of staff in the propagation department of the work. I cannot feel that it is right, just or manly for me to either force or allow Mrs. Tyler to face the fire any longer, and she is too honorable to leave the work, regardless of the cost, so long as I remain in the same and need her at her post of duty."

"Slanderers Must Answer."

Clarke added that he intended, after taking a brief physical rest, "to have those who have so maliciously slandered me answer to the fullest extent of the law," and he said he could do this better outside the official circle of the klan than by remaining within.

Mrs. Tyler, on learning of Clarke's action, made this statement to the Atlanta Journal:

"I have been informed Mr. Clarke has resigned. He is weak-kneed and won't stand by his guns. I am not thankful to him for making my situation the basis for his actions. I

HOLDUP MEN IN PISTOL FIGHT IN GRAND CENTRAL STATION

Three Robbers Flee After Firing of Many Shots and Attempt to Take Satchel of Cash.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A pistol battle in a third-floor corridor of the Grand-Central Station, in which numerous shots were fired, resulted today in three men fleeing after attempting to hold up two railroad employes who had a satchel of cash.

After a chase through the corridor Albert Malloy was seized by Paul Shea, a special policeman, who was accompanying James Lewis, a cashier for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Lewis had a satchel containing cash variously estimated at from $15,000 to $60,000.

As they were nearing their destination two of the trio hit Shea and Lewis with pieces of lead pipes done up in newspapers. Lewis fell unconscious, the satchel of money beneath him. Shea pulled his pistol and fired all six shots. The three robbers also pulled pistols and two of them emptied their guns. The other's pistol stuck.

Shea grabbed Malloy and subdued him by beating him on the head with his empty revolver. The other men escaped.

BOSTON MEN TOOK HOME GOLF TITLE, ALSO $7000 POOL

St. Louis Man Bought Guilford at Original Auction for $430, but Sold Him to Make a Quick Fifty.

OUIMET BROUGHT HIGH PRICE IN THE BIDDING

R. C. Van Arsdale Went Home With Big Check, but Had to Give 10 Per Cent to Gardner Ticket.

In the wake of the winning of the national amateur golf championship last Saturday by a Boston man, it was learned today that another man from Boston won the $7040 championship "pool" which was raised by an auction of the players' chances. An interesting sidelight was that a St. Louisan originally bought the winning chance for $430, but sold it for $480 to make an immediate profit of $50, thereby losing about $6000.

The winner of the pool was R. C. Van Arsdale of Boston, who entered the championship tournament at the St. Louis Country Club, but failed to qualify in the first day's 18-hole preliminary round. He had to give 10 per cent of the "pool" to the holder of Robert Gardner's chances, and also paid out a small portion to some Boston friends who persuaded him to sell them $25 shares on Jesse Guilford, who won the championship.

An account widely circulated among golfers was that George Harsh of Webster Groves, a member of the Merchants' Exchange, and Elzy G. Burkham of 4537 Pershing avenue, vice president of the Moreno-Burkham Construction Co., had purchased Guilford originally in the pool, at which the players' chances were sold at auction to the highest bidder. When seen on the Merchants' Exchange floor this morning Harsh said that he never had the Guilford chance.

"I bought Evans and Hunter," said Harsh, "and I had the field, but Burkham was the one who lost out on the Guilford deal."

Burkham, when reached this afternoon, said that he did not participate in the pool, and that the Burkham mentioned in the story going the round of golfers might have been a relative.

Auctioned Monday Night.

The "pool" was auctioned last Monday night, after the pairings had been made for the first round of match play. Slips of paper, 32 bearing names of players and others blanks, were put in a hat and a specified sum was paid for the privilege of drawing a slip. Those who drew men later purchased in the pool were paid 10 per cent of the amount bid. Then the auctioneer asked for bids on first choice. This brought $1050 and the bidder chose "Chick" Evans, the champion. Strangely, the second choice went for more than the first, $1200 being paid for Francis Ouimet of Boston, former national amateur and former national open champion, who that day had finished the final qualifying 36-hole play in 144 strokes, thereby becoming low medalist of the tournament. The third choice brought $1100 or $1200, and the bidder picked Robert ("Bobby") T. Jones of Atlanta.

Then came other choices, with Guilford well down the list, bringing only $430. Harsh and another man, it was said, bought Evans for $1500 fro mhis original purchaser. The St. Louisan who originally bought the Guilford chance sold it when Van Arsdale offered $50 margin.

Sold Few $25 Shares.

As the match play progressed the chances of Guilford looked better and better to Boston writers and Van Arsdale was bombarded with requests for shares in Guilford's chances. He sold a few $25 shares to newspaper men from Boston and friends of Guilford.

Before the final started last Saturday morning, the Boston contingent, including Van Arsdale, weakened slightly and were at the first tee bright and early seeking G. Herbert Walker, broker, who had purchased Robert A. Gardner, Guilford's opponent in the final, for about $1000. The Boston men wanted to divide the pool with Walker, but Walker was not to be found and the offer could not be presented.

Betting odds at the first tee favored Gardner over Guilford in the final, and, after failing to see Walker, the Boston contingent again became confident and covered large bets, taking the short end of odds at 8 to 10 and 5 to 7. They had won several wagers Friday when they unhesitatingly took the short end of 3 to 5 bets that Guilford would beat Evans in the semifinals.

HITCHCOCK, UNDERWOOD AND OTHER DEMOCRATS FAVOR RATIFYING TREATY

Senate Leader Calls Conference for Tomorrow on Program of Minority on Agreement With Germany.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—All Democratic Senators were called today to meet in conference tomorrow to consider minority action with respect to the peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary.

Senator Underwood of Alabama, Democratic leader, issued the call for the conference after consultation with Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, ranking Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Hitchcock, who returned here today and who was not present when the treaties were reported by the committee last week, expressed himself as favoring ratification. Senator Underwood also was said to be a supporter of the treaties.

Preliminary surveys are reported as showing only a comparatively small number of Democratic Senators opposed to the treaties and tomorrow's conference is expected to reveal almost the exact number. Republican leaders say they expect to lose only two or three Republican votes.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican leader, conferred today with Secretary Hughes and is understood to have discussed ratification prospects.

Lodge Speaks for Treaty.

The German treaty was taken up again when debate on the Tax Bill lapsed. Senator Lodge made a brief statement in support of the treaties.

By ratification, Senator Lodge said, "We get rid of our war relationship; they (the treaties) involve us in nothing more."

The Massachusetts Senator added that consular treaties would have to follow, to re-establish business relations, although the pending pacts, he said, "would smooth the way for business."

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, reiterated his contention that the treaties did not go far enough toward securing American cleams.

Senator Borah renewed his attack, expressing his regret that he was "out of harmony with practically all" Republican Senators. He added that his attitude was based on the broad principle of opposition to entangling European alliances. The pending treaties, he said, were the "first step toward entering the League of Nations," and would ramify into European affairs.

WOMAN KILLED AFTER FAINTING IN ELEVATOR

Mrs. Emma Lodge's Head Crushed Between Floors at the Holland Building.

Mrs. Emma Lodge, 39 years old, of 4153 Glasgow avenue, wife of Chester A. Lodge, a motorman on the Grand avenue line, was killed in an elevator of the Holland Building, 211 North Seventh street, about 10:45 a. m. today. Her body was identified at the morgue by her husband.

She had asked to be let out at the ninth floor and had ridden to a point between the fourth and fifth floors when she fainted and fell. Before the elevator could be stopped her head was crushed between the floor of the car and the fifth floor of the building.

There was a gate on the shaft, but none on the elevator car. After the accident Frederick Fitzsimmons, assistant manager of the building, said an inspector recently examined the hydraulic elevators of the building and said that cage doors could not be installed without remodeling the entire system.

Mrs. Lodge was on her way to the offices of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., on the ninth floor, to get a receipt for her husband's life insurance premium which had been sent to the office by mail last week. When the accident occurred the only other persons in the elevator cage were Robert Loser of 2930 St. Vincent avenue and William Wolf, 19 years old, the elevator conductor.

Lodge said at the morgue that he had never known his wife to be subject to fainting spells.

MAN CONFESSES HE WAS HIRED BY MINISTER TO KILL WOMAN

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 26.—With the confession of Raymond Cole, Montgomery County mountaineer, yesterday, who, according to officers, declared he shot and killed Mrs. Anna McKennon in her lonely cabin in the hills of Montgomery County last May, and implicated the Rev. Harding Hughes, superannuated minister, as the man who hired him to do the killing, the prosecution in the case of Hughes, who goes on trial at Mount Ida Oct. 17 on murder charges, will be materially strengthened, according to the local District Attorney.

Cole was yesterday brought face to face with Hughes for the first time since the tragedy. Hughes was arrested soon after the crime was uncovered and placed in a Mount Ida hotel for safe keeping in preference to the jail there. He escaped but was arrested near Hot Springs later. He made statements which officers declared implicated Cole as the man who fired the shots into the woman's body. Cole was a fugitive for several months, but was arrested in Kansas recently and brought here. According to local officers he made a complete confession yesterday, declaring he was hired by Hughes to kill the woman. Hughes is alleged to have declared there was no truth in Cole's statement. Both Hughes and Cole are under indictment for first degree murder. Valuable mineralle lands, owned by Mrs. McKennon, are said to have been the cause of the killing.

2000-POUND BOMB SINKS THE ALABAMA

Explosive Dropped From Airplane Ends Career of Old Battleship in Chesapeake Bay.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 26.—A 2000-pound bomb ended the career of the battleship Alabama at 12:15 today. A martin bomber flying over the old warship anchored off Tangier Island in Chesapeake Bay, tore her mast off, destroyed the superstructure, and turned her over on her side in shallow water.

Six other planes almost simultaneously turned 1000 and 2000 pound bombs on the hulk as she went down. Four hit the vessel as she turned over, and the remainder landed in the water within 20 or 30 feet.

The plane which gave the Alabama her death blow flew over the vessel and dropped a 100-pound sighting bomb. Her pilot then guided her back and from the observations taken, the 2000-pound bomb was dropped.

The scoring by the seven planes participating was 100 per cent, air service officers said. The chemical warfare laboratory tests were particularly satisfactory as illustrating that no person could have lived on the ship after deadly gases had been released from bombs dropped on it.

INDICATION TRAINMEN'S UNION VOTE FAVORS STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—A majority of the 186,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have voted to strike rather than accept the recent wage cut ordered by the United States Railroad Labor Board, general chairmen of the brotherhood indicated today as they began an official canvass of the ballots.

Fifty-seven general chairman who arrived during the day privately reported to Vice President James Murdock that their men were in favor of a strike unless their demands are met.

Counting of the strike vote will not be completed for five or six days. The form of ballot carries a vote for or against "a strike unless the wage question can be settled in a manner satisfactory to the general grievance committee representing the class of service in which I am engaged."

The Executive Committee will take up consideration of the calling of a strike as soon as the vote is tallied.

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE PRESIDENT OF POLAND

LEMBERG, Sept. 26.—Gen. Joseph Pilsudski, president of the Polish republic, narrowly escaped death by assassination here last night. He was entering an automobile in City Hall Square on his way to a theater after attending a banquet in his honor when three shots were fired at him. Gen. Pilsudski was not wounded, but Count Grabowski, who was accompanying him, was wounded in the leg.

The President directed his chauffeur to drive to a hospital, and, after being assured that Count Grabowski's wound was not serious, insisted on going to the theater as he had intended. He was enthusiastically cheered by the audience when he entered.

The would-be assassin attempted to end his life, but was arrested before he could injure himself.

PRESIDENT AGAINST AID TO IDLE MEN BY TREASURY

Harding Tells Members of Unemployment Conference at Washington Whole World Looks to U. S. for Example in Relief Work.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO REPORT OCT. 5

Secretary Hoover, in Outlining Program, Suggests Survey of Number Unemployed in Country.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The national unemployment conference completed its first session today with the adoption of its organization committee's report forming nine subcommittees and calling for reports from them by Wednesday, Oct. 5.

The session was formally opened by President Harding.

Addressing the half hundred industrial, economic and labor leaders comprising the conference, the President described the present industrial depression as a "war inheritance throughout the world," for which, as applied to the United States, he "would have little enthusiasm for any proposed relief which seeks either palliation or tonic from the public treasury."

Belief was expressed by the President that the results of the conference would be felt beyond the borders of the United States and that the delegates in their deliberations would be performing "a service to the world."

Position Depends on Working.

"Fundamentally sound, financially strong, individually unimpaired, commercially consistent and politically unafraid," the President asserted, "there ought to be work for everybody in the United States who chooses to work, and our condition at home and our place in the world depends on everybody going to work and pursuing it with that patriotism and devotion which make for a fortunate and happy people."

The delegates were told by Mr. Harding that they had not been invited into the conference "to solve the long-controverted problems of our social system," and that Secretary Hoover, whom he had designated as chairman of the conference, would lay before them the program of discussions.

Reference to World Service.

In telling the conference members that they were destined to perform a world service, the President quoted a "distinguished foreigner" as having recently declared:

"Mr. President, our people are deeply interested in the American conference on unemployment, because our problem is akin to your own, and your relief in the United States will be an added signal of hope from America to us and other peoples who are much depressed."

"That remark of a distinguished foreigner emphasized our responsibility," the President added. "If it be true that no citizen is without example to some one among his fellows, which I believe to be everlastingly true, then nations, great and small, are influencing others in all they do. * * *

"The industrial depression which we are feeling is a war inheritance throughout the world. We saw humanity stressed in that production which is impelled by nations desperate in self-preservation. * * * From such a test there is inevitable reaction. * * * With the world involved there is no escape for any of the world from the valleys of depression. Though we suffered less than many of those with whom we were associated, and less than any of those against whom we contended, it was inevitable that we experience the fever's aftermath and come to know depression before we could become normal again.

"Open, Sure and Onward Way."

"Liquidation, reorganization, readjustment, re-establishment, taking account of things done and sober contemplation of things to be done, the finding of firm ground and the open, sure and onward way—all these are a part of the inevitable, and he who thinks they might have been avoided by this plan or that, or this policy or that, or this international relationship or that, only hugs the delusion, when reason is needed for a safe counsel.

"You have been summoned to counsel all America, to apply your

MAN IS KILLED BY SPEEDING AUTO THAT RACES AWAY

Thomas Cleary, Struck at Broadway and North Market Street, Dies in Hospital From Injuries.

VICTIM IS DRAGGED MORE THAN 25 FEET

Spectators Unable to See License Number, but Say Car Contained Two Men and Two Women.

Thomas Cleary, 41 years old, of 2420 North Broadway, died at the city hospital at 10:30 o'clock last night from a fractured skull and other injuries suffered three hours earlier when he was struck and dragged by a speeding automobile, that failed to stop, at Broadway and North Market street. The machine, the police were told, was occupied by two men on the front seat and two women on the rear seat.

A nickel-plated "T" shaped automobile door handle, broken from the automobile at the time of the accident, was found near the scene and is being held by the police as a possible clew in tracing the machine.

Cleary was crossing from the east to the west side of Broadway on the south crossing when the machine, driven at a speed estimated at 40 miles an hour, sped south on Broadway in the southbound car tracks. After striking Cleary the machine dragged him more than 25 feet.

Witnesses, who were a block south of the scene, told the police they attempted to get the license number but could not see it because the tail light was not burning. Cleary was unconscious when taken to the city hospital.

This was the third accident since Saturday night in which drivers sped away after seriously injuring pedestrians.

Verdict of Accident in Death of Man Run Down by Auto.

A verdict of accident was returned today at the inquest over Frederick Haynes, 49 years old, of 2651 Washington avenue, who died Saturday of injuries suffered last Thursday night, when he was run down in front of his home by an automobile driven by Maurice Horwitz, 22, of 5444 Vernon avenue.

Adolph Lang of 2642 Washington avenue testified that Haynes crossed the street diagonally in the middle of the block near his home and that he stepped in front of the automobile after Horwitz had sounded his horn and slowed down.

Several Hurt in Motor Vehicle Accidents in Day.

Several persons were injured in motor vehicle accidents yesterday.

Aurelius Lopeck, 24, of 2009 Fair avenue, and Lester Crowley, 19, of 1205 Howard street, were thrown from Lopeck's motor cycle in collision with an automobile driven by Ivor Cooke, 2728A Rutger street, at Broadway and Angelica street. At the city hospital Lopeck was said to have suffered a fractured skull and Crowley scalp wounds and internal injuries.

He was taken to the city hospital. The machine that caused the damage did not stop.

Five persons were injured yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding about 14 miles west of the city on the Clayton road was struck by another machine and swerved from the road and fell over a 15-foot embankment. Those injured were riding with Frank Nilson, a carpenter, of 5218 Gresham avenue, who suffered cuts and bruises. Mrs. J. Grendel, 64, of 3228 Vista avenue, was most seriously hurt, suffering several fractured ribs. Mrs. Nilson suffered a sprained right shoulder, scalp wounds, cuts and bruises; her son, Frank Jr., 12, was cut and bruised, and Mrs. Mary Kuchenig of 3227 Vista avenue received an injury to her back, a sprained knee and cuts and bruises. WORLD WATCHING U. S. FOR UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF, HARDING SAYS knowledge and your experience in relieving a condition which concerns all America," the President further told the conference. "Specifically, you are to deal with the unemployment, to suggest a way to repairing the arterial circulation which is the very life blood of the republic.

"There is always unemployment. Under most favorable conditions, I am told, there are a million and a half in the United States who are not at work. But there is excessive unemployment today and we are concerned, not alone about its diminution, but we are frankly anxious, under the involved conditions lest it grow worse, with hardships of the winter season soon to be met. The problem of unemployment is the most difficult with which we are confronted.

"No Problems We Can't Solve."

"But there are no problems affecting our national life and the welfare of the American people which we cannot and will not solve. If we fail today we will try again tomorrow. * * *

"It is fair to say that you are not asked to solve the long-controverted problems of our social system. We have builded the America of today and the fundamentals of economic, industrial and political life which made us what we are, and the temple requires no remaking now. We are incontestably sound. We are constitutionally strong. We are merely depressed after the fever, and we want to know the way to speediest and dependable convalescence. When we know the way, everybody in America—capital and labor, employer and employes, captains of industry and the privates in the trenches—will go over the top in the advance drive of peace. Frankly, it is difficult to know whether we have reached that bedrock to which reaction runs before the upward course begins, but here are representatives of the forces which make for all we are or ever can be, and your soundings ought to be reliable.

"World Looking to U. S."

"I would have little enthusiasm for any proposed relief which seeks either palliation or tonic from the public treasury. The excess of stimulation from that source is to be reckoned a cause of trouble rather than a source of cure. We should achieve but little in a remedial way if we continued to excite a contributing cause.

"It is not my thought to suggest your lines of conference. * * * I have wished to say to you that the people of the United States are very deeply interested, and not alone the unemployed, but all who are concerned for our common weal and the world are looking on to find helpfulness in our "American Example."

Hoover Follows President.

Secretary Hoover, speaking immediately after the President had concluded his address, declared the conference first should determine the volume, distribution and character of the nation's unemployment, and, second, evolve a series of emergency methods to meet the present situation.

The Secretary of Commerce expressed the belief, as did President Harding, that the conference also should consider measures which could be utilized in event of recurrence of unemployment tides.

Remedies for the unemployment situation, Hoover declared, must not include any legislative program and there must be no drain upon the public treasury. The United States, he said, had so far escaped the doles and charity methods of foreign nations and should seek a mobilization of the co-operative action of manufacturers, employers and public authorities to meet the situation.

Committees to Be Named.

Hoover suggested that the conference in order to facilitate its work at once dissolve into committees which would report the various recommendations to the conference and that a committee on organization and program be appointed.

A motion that a committee on organization be named by Hoover was adopted and a committee of 10, to be added to later, was named by Hoover as follows: Henry S. Robinson, Los Angeles; Charles M. Schwab, New York; Julius Barnes, Duluth; Mayor James Couzens, Detroit; C. H. Markham, Chicago; Commissioner T. V. O'Connor, Shipping Board; Ida M. Tarbell, New York; Samuel M. Lindsay, New York; Clarence Mott Woolley, Detroit, and Matthew Woll, vice president American Federation of Labor.

Auctioneer on Scene.

Coincident with the convening of the unemployment conference Urbain Ledoux, who has been conducting a campaign for relief of the unemployed in Boston and New York, arrived in Washington and announced he would attend the conference as an observer. Ledoux said he would appeal to President Harding to publish the names of those who during the war profited to the extend of more than 100 per cent, so that they might share equally with the unemployed, the latter's part to be used under Government supervision for work of constructive welfare.

Later Ledoux announced that he had obtained an appointment with George B. Christian, secretary to President Harding, and would go to the White House late in the day. He said he would urge representation in the unemployment conference for the unemployed and made public telegrams received from the "Shorn Lambs of Labor," an organization which he founded in Boston during his recent auction block activities in the city, urging representation for the unemployed.

"I will sit on the doorsteps of the White House," he said in a formal statement. "Rain or shine, I will remain at the President's threshhold and patiently wait for publication of the list of war profiteers."

Senator McCormick, Republican, of Illinois, introduced in the Senate today a resolution authorizing use of surplus army and navy stores by war veterans' committees for the relief of unemployed.

DOCTOR SAYS HE FOUND MISS RAPPE IN GREAT PAIN

Hotel Physician Testifies Girl's Agony Overshadowed All Evidences of Alcoholism.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 26.—Dr. Arthur Beardslee, house physician for the St. Francis Hotel, testifying today in the police court examination of "Fatty" Arbuckle, said he found Miss Virginia Rappe, whose death Arbuckle is charged with having caused, in great pain when he was called into the case.

In the absence of his attorneys, Arbuckle acted for himself in the Superior Court in agreeing with the District Attorney that the manslaughter charge pending against him should be continued until Oct. 3.

Miss Rappe's writhing in intense pain overshadowed evidences of alcoholism, Dr. Beardslee testified, and it was necessary to quiet her by the use of a drug.

This was in the evening of Sept. 5, a few hours after the Hotel St. Francis party, out of which the charge against Arbuckle arose, according to the physician, and early the next morning he discovered evidence to support an earlier conclusion that Miss Rappe had suffered an internal injury.

From the beginning he realized it was a surgical case, and advised removal to a hospital.

"There was no other conclusion to draw from the evidence than that the bladder was ruptured," the witness said.

In answer to a hypothetical question regarding the cause of a torn bladder, Dr. Beardslee replied that he would consider external force, such as a fall or blow, to be the origin.

Violent and continued vomiting might cause such a rupture, the witness replied to a question from Arbuckle's counsel.

Although the defense attempted to draw from Dr. Beardslee an admission that other internal causes might have been responsible for his patient's pain, the physician said his composite knowledge of the case pointed to a bladder rupture.

Bruised Spot on Arm.

A black and blue spot on one arm was the only external sign of injury, according to Dr. Beardslee.

"Don't call me your friend," snapped the witness at Frank Dominguez, Arbuckle's chief counsel, after a long series of tilts between them during questioning by the defense attorney.

The morning after the party the case was turned over to Dr. M. E. Rumwell, according to Dr. Beardslee, who said he did not tell his conclusions about the patient's condition to Dr. Rumwell, because the latter did not ask him. Dr. Beardslee said he was merely following professional custom and that he would have passed on his information had it been requested.

"Did it appear Miss Rappe had been on a debauch?" questioned Dominguez.

Dr. Beardslee replied that it did not appear so, and in any event the intense pain overshadowed evidences of alcoholism.

The witness denied that he had told Sheriff Dolan of Mono County, when he was notified on his hunting trip that his testimony was wanted, that "too much high life" was the trouble with Miss Rappe.

Dr. Beardslee was still on the stand when a court recess was taken.

Mrs. Delmont to Testify.

Mrs. Bambina Maid Delmont, who swore to the complaint accusing Arbuckle of the murder of Miss Rappe, is announced as another witness to be called at the hearing today. Mrs. Delmont was the companion of Miss Rappe at the party in the Arbuckle suite at the Hotel St. Francis at which the girl is said to have suffered fatal injury.

The plan calls for Mrs. Delmont to take the witness stand after Dr. Beardslee and Al Semnacher of Los Angeles, Miss Rappe's business manager. Semnacher, it is announced, will be asked to testify as defense witness. Arbuckle attorneys saying that important details have been overlooked in his testimony. Semnacher had been called as a prosecution witness, but the prosecution repudiated him as its witness.

Brady said last night:

"We are satisfied with the progress made in the Arbuckle case. I wish to impress upon the public, though, the fact that we are not trying to 'hound' any man or attempt to force a conviction of a person on any charge. All we are trying to do in this case is to get the truth and punish those responsible for Miss Rappe's death."

Other prosecution witnesses whom Brady expects to have take the stand later today or tomorrow are Miss Alice Blake and Miss Zeh Prevost, who were guests at the Arbuckle party. That every woman witness for the prosecution will be thoroughly cross-examined by Arbuckle's attorneys is the expectation of Brady.

The screen comedian is spending his sixteenth day as a prisoner in the Hall of Justice, where he has been held since his arrest on charges in connection with the death of Miss Rappe.

USE OF ECONOMIC BLOCKADE BEFORE LEAGUE ASSEMBLY

Committee Report Recommends Methods for Action Against Countries Violating Provisions of Covenant

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—Methods of applying the economic weapon of the League of Nations against a country which violates the provisions of the covenant of the league came before the assembly of the league today when the Blockade Committee submitted its report.

The committee found it was impossible for the league to decide beforehand and in detail the various steps of an economic, commercial and financial nature that should be taken in each case. It proposed that the council of the league make recommendations to the members as to a plan for joint action when necessity should arise.

Interruption of diplomatic relations first would be limited to the withdrawal of the heads of diplomatic missions. The committee, held, however, that while consular relations might be maintained, if prolonged application of economic pressure was necessary, it should progressively be made more stringent.

In the resolutions that were proposed, provision was made that certain states might for a certain period be released from the obligation of blockading another country if the conditions were such as would involve especial danger to those states.

An important question facing the assembly at the beginning of this debate was how to get action on the propositions of the committee under the rule requiring unanimity, this rule not yet having been abrogated. Lord Robert Cecil, representing the Union of South Africa, recently made a motion that the rule be suspended, but it was referred to the Constitutional Committee. An effort will be made to obtain a vote on this motion before balloting begins on the resolutions regarding the blockade.

It is believed here that unanimity in committee recommendations is impossible.

In addition to resolutions interpretating the covenant of the league, the committee proposed an amendment to article 16 of the covenant, which provides for united action against a state violating that agreement. The amendment follows:

"The council of the league will give an opinion whether a breach of the covenant has taken place. When the council gives such opinion, the votes of states charged with having committed a breach of the covenant and of states bringing the charge, whether they are members of the council under article 4, or have been specially summoned, shall not be reckoned in determining whether or not there has been a unanimous decision."

Another proposed amendment reads:

"The council may in the case of a particular member postpone the coming into force of any of these measures for a specified period where it is satisfied such postponement will facilitate the attainment of the object of the measures to be applied, or that it is necessary in order to minimize the loss and inconvenience which will be caused such members."

This amendment is proposed to satisfy the Scandinavian members, who demanded exemption from the obligation to blockade when the measure was applied to neighboring states.

MAIL TRAIN HITS FREIGHT IN TUNNEL; AT LEAST TWO KILLED

Engineer and Conductor Known to Be Dead in Ohio Crash—Both Trains Demolished.

By the Associated Press.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 26.—Two men are known to have lost their lives shortly before noon yesterday when Pennsylvania Railroad train No. 11, westbound from New York to St. Louis, crashed into the rear end of a freight train in the Gould tunnel, six miles west of here. The mail train was drawn by two engines. Michael Birch, engineer on the front engine, was one of those killed. The other was Oliver Schulp of Dennison, O., conductor of the freight train.

An immense volume of smoke emerging from the mouth of the tunnel has made it difficult to ascertain the full extent of damage done, but according to official reports sent out at least one car of the mail train and both engines were overturned in the crash. Some of the members of both crews escaped through the western exit of the tunnel, none of them seriously injured.

According to the crossing flagman at Gould's station, the mail train going at its customary speed of 65 miles an hour at that point, recognized the yellow "caution" signal and slowed down. He gave it as his opinion that a defect in the mechanism in the signal arrangement probably caused the failure of the stop signal being displayed.

The entire tunnel at the scene of the collision is blocked. The caboose and five freight cars are smashed to pieces and jammed in a mass the full width of the tunnel.

am not going to resign. I am going to stay in the order if I have to carry on my work for nothing. Mr. Clarke has done me a gross injustice by not first consulting me before he took such a step. I'm going to stick."

Mrs. Tyler's language indicates a quarrel between herself and Clarke. Such a quarrel would be by no means the first occurrence of the kind, a mutual acquaintance of the two said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent.

Wizard Simmons, who spoke in St. Louis Saturday night, was expected to take up the situation upon his return here.

William J. Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, left St. Louis yesterday morning, according to local officials of the order. They gave it to be understood that he had returned to Atlanta.

BRITISH REPLY TO IRISH NOTE WILL BE SENT WEDNESDAY

Constabulary to Be Mobilized Following Rioting at Belfast in Which Bombs Were Thrown.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Prime Minister Lloyd George will send the British Government's answer to the latest note from Eamon de Valera, Irish Republican leader, on Wednesday, it is learned here today.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Sept. 26.—Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, after a conference here with the military and police this afternoon, announced that it had been decided to mobilize special constabulary in certain parts of Northern Ireland for the maintenance of order.

A few shots fired on the Newtownards road were the only outward indications of the excited feeling aroused by the disturbances of Sunday night, in which several bombs were thrown, three persons were killed and some two score wounded.

Fears were expressed, however, that there would be action in reprisal for the bomb throwing.

A shop assistant was shot through the jaw in My Lady's road in East Belfast by one of a crowd which dispersed after the shooting.

Men working on the new football ground on Queen's Island were attacked and three badly beaten.

A committee was delegated to call on Mayor Kiel and W. Frank Car- n, president of the Chamber of mmerce, and obtain their views on e open-shop movement.

"This open-shop proposition has ne too far," said James B. Con- n. "It is time for organized labor adopt the slogan, 'They shall not ss.' We can afford to retreat no rther. We must stand and fight. is is not the battle of only the few ions now involved in open-shop ntroversy. It is the battle of the ire body of organized labor. We st let the employers know that trades unionists are more bene- al to the city than the Chamber of mmerce. We represent the work- g people. The Chamber of Com- rce represents only a group of ployers who are determined to ce intolerable conditions upon em- yes."

President Hauser of the Central ades told the delegates that the ccess of the movement in opposi- n to the open-shop depends upon morrow night's meeting. "If the ndance is not enormous the n-shoppers' will say the trades ionists are not sincere," he de- ared.

Armistice Day Plans.

The circular letter of President mpers of the American Federa- n of Labor, directing central ons of every community to organ- parades and mass meetings on mistice day, Nov. 11, "in sup- rt of the purpose underlying the ternational conference on the limi- tion of armament," which was nched in press dispatches, Sept. was read at yesterday's meeting the Central Trades and Labor on, and a resolution pledging the rying out of the program in St. is was adopted by unanimous e.

"It is planned," the letter stated, unite all civic bodies, trade union xiliaries, women's trades union ues, educational organizations, men's clubs and, in fact, all or- nizations interested in civic affairs of a progressive character in great effort.

The purpose of the demonstration, expressed in the communication t by President Gompers to the tral unions, is "backing up our ernment in its leadership toward armament and giving courage and termination to the American rep- entatives in the international mission."

Substance of Gompers' Letter.

After direction to the fact that e proposed demonstration is not pired by thoughts of pacifism, communication continued:

"The fact is that disarmament w is possible for practical reasons d not for sentimental reasons. timental reasons have existed al- ays, but the world kept on arm- g. The practical thing that stood the way of yielding to sentiment s the necessity of protecting the ance of democracy against the stant threat and menace of au- acy and militarism.

"While the two systems of human anization and Government stood ing each other on relatively even ms of strength the cause of dis- ament was a hopeless one.

"The great militarist autocracies e perished. A fundamental ange has come over the peoples nerly ruled by Emperors, eens, Czars and conquerors. Self- ernment has been gained for ically the whole civilized world. fact, more than any other, makes disarmament possible today."

It was decided by the delegates to await further instruction from the American Federation of Labor before planning an armistice day program.

Bitting Invitation Accepted.

The delegates accepted an invitation from the Rev. W. C. Bitting of the Second Baptist Church to take part in a municipal demonstration expressing the desire of all religious, commercial, civic, educational and industrial bodies in favor of disarmament, which is to be held Sunday, Nov. 6, at some available meeting place. Plans for the affair have not as yet assumed definite shape.

Labor Sunday will be observed next Sunday evening when the Central Trades and Labor Union will attend special services at the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, 3610 Delmar boulevard. The Rev. Benjamin Young, the pastor, will preach a sermon dealing with the industrial situation.

The Central Trades body voted to give its moral support to the fall festival of the St. Louis Public School Patrons' Alliance, which is to be held next Saturday at Forest Park. A souvenir history of the St. Louis public schools covering a period of 100 years will be distributed.

KU KLUX KLAN RENTED TEMPLE UNDER NAME OF "BUSINESS MEN"

W. J. G. Neun Says Arrangements for Meeting Were Made Several Weeks Ago.

Walter J. G. Neun, imperial potentate of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, which owns Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, said today that arrangements for the use of the temple by the Ku Klux Klan, for its meeting Saturday night, were made several weeks ago in the name of the Missouri Business Men. The Ku Klux organization did not make the arrangements in its own name, he said.

Neun said the policy had been to rent the hall to any reputable organization which would pay the price asked. He said the arrangement for Saturday night's meeting was made by the "Missouri Business Men" before public attention was called to the policies and methods of the Ku Klux by articles published in the Post-Dispatch and other newspapers.

Neun said he had heard unfavorable criticism of the use of the hall for a Ku Klux meeting, and that if any dissension was likely to result from this incident he would oppose the use of the hall by the organization in future. A. D. Grant, secretary of the shrine, said he rented the hall to the Missouri Business Men, and that he saw no reason for criticism of this action.

ST. CHARLES CONSTABLE SHOT IN RAID ON ILLICIT STILL

Joseph J. Olendorf Twice Wounded by Man Who Approaches From Barn on Farm.

Joseph J. Olendorf, Constable of St. Charles Township, was shot twice, presumably by a moonshiner, on the farm of Michael Hoffmann, three miles southwest of St. Charles, on the State highway, at 7 o'clock last night, following a raid on an illicit still in Hoffmann's house and the discovery of two large concrete vats containing several thousand gallons of raisin mash in the basement.

One bullet entered Olendorf's right wrist and emerged at the elbow, and the other struck him in the right side, being deflected by his ribs and causing only a flesh wound. His condition is not serious.

Olendorf was accompanied by two deputies, one of whom had been sent to St. Charles with parts of the still, the other deputy remaining with him. A man approaching from the direction of a barn fired on them without warning, wounding Olendorf and escaping behind the barn. Olendorf was able to drive his automobile back to St. Charles.

In 1915 Olendorf was shot by a negro who had barricaded himself in a barn and who later was cremated when the barn was set on fire. Sheriff John Dierker was shot and killed in trying to capture the negro.

ARGUMENT IN DEMURRER TO LIBEL SUIT WILL END TODAY

Attorney for City of Chicago in $10,000,000 Action Attacks Statement of Tribune Counsel

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Argument in the Chicago Tribune's demurrer to the city's suit for $10,000,000 damages for alleged libel will be brought to a close this afternoon. Chester Cleveland, representing the city, took up the argument of Weymouth Kirkland, attorney for the Tribune, and said the latter's proposition was that, under certain circumstances, a city can sue a newspaper for special damages. This theory, Cleveland declared, was without foundation in law, because the law of libel is that where words are libelous in themselves no special damages need be shown. No reason has yet been advanced, he said, why the city cannot maintain an action for words which are libelous in themselves.

The city might have alleged special damages, but this fact would not have changed the nature of the action, he claimed. There is certainly no more restraint on the press, he said, in a suit based on words libelous in themselves than in an action for special damages based on false words.

Cleveland interpreted Kirkland's argument as being that the city, as a municipality, had a right to maintain the latter form of action. Applying that to the present case if the city had included in its declaration a single averment claiming special damages, then under Kirkland's arguments the present suit might have been maintained. This, Cleveland said, was an absurdity. In Illinois there was no such thing as plain libels; all suits for libel were actions on the case. The city has a right to sue if it sets up a cause for action, he said, and the distinction between an action for special damages and one based on words libelous in themselves does not apply.

TWO YEARS IN WORKHOUSE FOR PASSING WORTHLESS CHECKS

Man Giving Address as Buckingham Annex, Says He Did Not Know Balance Was Insufficient.

Eugene A. Penn, 29 years old, who gave his address as the Buckingham Annex, was sentenced to two years in the workhouse today by Judge Miller in the Court of Criminal Correction for drawing and passing two checks which were not honored by the bank because of insufficient funds.

Early in 1920 Penn, who was employed as a salesman for the Refiners' Oil Co., was advanced $45 and at another time $65, by the company, for which he gave his check on the Central National Bank for $110. The check was returned with the notation that he had only $1.33 to his account. A few months later Penn gave Thomas Ferrenbach, 5441 Bartmer avenue, a check for $40, when there was only 33 cents in his account at the bank.

Before being sentenced to one year imprisonment for each check Penn admitted drawing and cashing the checks, but said he did not know at the time he did not have sufficient money in bank to meet them.

DOUBT THAT SLAYER OF MISS HANAN KILLED HERSELF

District Attorney of Brooklyn Tells of Report Indicating a Second Man Saw Shooting.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Doubt that Mrs. Grace Laws killed herself after fatally wounding Miss Mildred Hanan last week, was created today by a report which District Attorney Lewis of Brooklyn said had moved him to continue his investigation of the case. The report reaching him, he said, was that Mrs. Laws might not have died by her own hand, and that another man besides John S. Borland was nearby when she shot Miss Hanan.

District Attorney Lewis said he would have a careful examination made of the body of Mrs. Laws, which remains unclaimed today at the morgue.

Miss Hanan, daughter of the late Alfred P. Hanan, shoe manufacturer, died in the Long Island College Hospital early yesterday without having advanced any explanation as to why she had been shot Friday morning by her erstwhile chum, Mrs. Laws.

Borland, an importer and Dartmouth graduate, who was in her company when the shooting took place, outside the apartment of a mutual friend, on Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, was at her bedside when the end came, at 4 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Calara M. Hanan, her mother, and several other relatives, also were present, but the girl, who had lapsed into unconsciousness shortly after midnight, did not recognize any of them.

POLICEMEN FIRE ON HOLDUP MEN IN FOREST PARK

Six Highwaymen, However, Return Shots and Escape After Robbing Salesman of $41.

MEN FLEE ON FOOT AND IN AN AUTO

Machine Had Followed Albert Gasen for Mile Before Blocking Way at Clayton and Skinker Roads.

Six highwaymen escaped after a revolver fight with policemen at Clayton and Skinker roads at 1:30 a. m. today, following the holdup of Albert Gasen, a salesman, of 4100 Finney avenue. The chase extended to Wells drive in Forest Park, where the robbers, four of whom were in an automobile and two on foot, disappeared.

Gasen, accompanied by a young woman, whose name the police did not obtain, was driving in a Ford east on the Clayton road, when a Marmon touring car, which had pursued him for about a mile, turned in the road ahead of him and blocked his path.

"Get out of that machine and stick 'em up," commanded one of two men who alighted from the large automobile and pointed revolvers at Gasen. The latter obeyed and was robbed of his watch and $41. He was then ordered to get back into his car and drive on.

Chased by Policemen.

Mounted Policeman Tyree and Private Watchman Schenkle, who had been standing about a block west, heard the command and ran toward the scene.

One of the four men who had remained in the Marmon car shouted to his companions to "beat it," and the automobile was driven north in Skinker road, followed on foot by the two men who had actually participated in the robbery.

As the robbers' automobile turned east into Forest Park the occupants began shooting at the pursuing policemen and watchman, who returned the fire and kept up the chase until their ammunition was exhausted. Tyree and Schenkle then looked for the men who had fled on foot, but were unable to trace them.

Gasen's watch later was recovered at the point where the robbers on foot had entered the park. Gasen was unable to give a description of the two men who held him up. He said they wore masks.

Another Auto Fired On.

About 3 a. m., Mounted Policemen Harris and Kountz saw an automobile, occupied by three men, running at high speed east along a road leading from Art Hill. Harris stepped into the road and gave an order to halt, but the automobile continued on, almost knocking Harris down. The policemen fired several shots at the car but it did not stop.

Man Held Up Near Carr Street Police Station and Beaten.

Frank Capik, 34, of 2828 North Union avenue, a shoeworker, was held up by three men in Columbus Square, across the street from the Carr Street Police Station, at 12:05 a. m., and robbed of 53 cents and his pocketknife. In resisting the robbers he was severely beaten, his nose being fractured. Later three men were arrested at Eleventh and Biddle streets. Two had red spots on their shirts. The police discovered this when they found one man washing his shirt in the cell. One had 53 cents in his pockets.

Ira Crawford, 51, of 4236A Folsom avenue, a watchmaker, was slashed across the left arm and shoulder by a highwayman whom he resisted at Nineteenth and Market streets at 9 o'clock last night. The robber took $20 from Crawford and escaped in an automobile.

Herman Fine of 2724 Thomas street reported he was held up by a man with a knife on Nineteenth street, between Pine and Olive streets, at 2 p. m., and robbed of $1.40.

Burglars got into the grocery of Paul Weissner, 1239 North Thirteenth street, by forcing a rear door, and took $40 from an iron safe. Weissner told the police that he probably had left the safe unlocked, as it was opened by the burglars without any tampering.

WIDOW GETS COPY OF G. O. P. SPEECH CHAMP CLARK WROTE

Former Speaker Penned It for Negro, Who Made It, From His Recollection.

The original copy of a Republican speech, written out by the late Champ Clark in 1880 as an act of kindness to a negro barber, has come into the possession of Mrs. Clark, whose home is in Bowling Green, Mo. Mrs. Clark said today that she believed the document to be genuine.

Clark, who was then City Attorney of Bowling Green, attended a Republican county convention, to see what the other side was doing, and heard a speech made by Charlie Covington, the barber who frequently attended him, advocating the nomination of Gen. Grant for a third term as President. Clark later complimented the barber on his speech, and told him that if he were to repeat it, he might be selected as a delegate to the national convention. Covington said he could not repeat the speech, as it had been made extemporaneously in a burst of enthusiasm. Clark then wrote the speech out for him, from his recollection, putting in some unusual words which the negro had used, but making the speech a vigorous and sincere plea for the nomination of Grant, on account of his services to the negro race. This is believed to have been the only Republican speech ever written by Champ Clark.

WOMAN ESCAPES FROM 3 MEN

Police questioned May Arlington, 23 years old, of 621A South Broadway, early today after receiving a telephone message from the military police at Jefferson Barracks which said three men had attempted to attack the woman on the reservation last night.

To the police the woman said she had attended a dance at the barracks and had started home alone after her escort had been taken ill. Three men in an automobile, she said, offered to take her into the city and had attempted to attack her. She had escaped from the men, she said, about the time the military police came up. The three men drove away. Policemen tracing the license number found the automobile was a rented car and had been turned in at a garage before they arrived.

$75,000 FIRE IN COMMISSION HOUSE

Blaze at 816-18 North Third Street Destroys Eggs and Live and Dressed Poultry.

The contents of a five-story brick building at 816-818 North Third street, occuied by the Meyer Bros. Commission Co., were destroyed by a fire which started about 3 p. m. yesterday, causing a general alarm to be sounded.

Officials of the company today estimated that the loss included 25,000 live chickens, 30,000 dozen eggs and a large quantity of dressed poultry. The damage to the stock was tentatively placed at about $40,000 and the damage to the building, owned by Edward J. Becker of New York, at $35,000.

An employe of the company was feeding chickens on the first floor when he saw smoke coming up the elevator shaft from the basement. Herman Meyer, a member of the firm, today said the building had two basements, with hides in the lower and eggs in the upper one.

The fire quickly spread through the building and threatened other commission houses. There was water and smoke damage to the stock of the Niemeyer-Buchmueller Commission Co., which had space in the Meyer building and to the stock of the Scheitlin-Hofmann Commission Co., 820 North Third street. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DECISION

Nebraska Law Held to Be Constitutional.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 26.—The Nebraska anti-foreign language law, designed to prevent teaching of German in the lower grades of public and private schools, has been held constitutional by Judge Button in the Dodge District Court, but the Court construed the law to permit religious instruction to be given to children below the ninth grade in any language desired by the parents of the children.

The State will take the case to the Supreme Court. The decision was handed down Saturday.

$425 Jewelry Robbery Downtown.

Burglars got into the store of the McCoy-Weber Jewelry Co., 515 Locust street, apparently with a duplicate key, after the store closed Saturday night, and stole from a showcase jewelry valued at $425.50. They also took $25 in bills from a desk.

SAYS HE WAS BEATEN TO FORCE CONFESSION

Higlin Exhibits Welts on Back and Chest, Pleads Not Guilty of Robbery.

Clyde L. Higlin, 36 years old, a waiter, who confessed to the police last Friday night that he planned the holdup in which a valise containing $14,000 was taken from John Hellems, negro messenger for the North St. Louis Savings Trust Co., with the connivance of Hellems, the afternoon of Sept. 14, today in the city jail exhibited to his attorney, Thomas J. O'Brien, former Assistant Circuit Attorney, in the presence of newspaper reporters, welts on his back and chest which, he said, were inflicted by three city detectives to make him confess.

Higlin, when arraigned shortly after noon in the Court of Criminal Correction, pleaded not guilty to a charge of grand larceny, contained in a warrant issued by the Circuit Attorney's office last Saturday, and his bond was fixed at $15,000 by Judge Hochdoerfer.

Man Turned Over Today.

O'Brien, after the arraignment, invited reporters to accompany him to the jail, saying he desired that they should see the physical evidence of the beating Higlin said he had received at the hands of the detectives. O'Brien complained that, although the warrant was issued Saturday, he was unable to induce the Police Department to transfer Higlin from the holdover at Central Police Station to the jail until today.

"Three detectives entered my cell at the Deer street station, where I was taken following my arrest last Friday afternoon, and this is what they did to me with 'billies' and a section of rubber hose," said Higlin, removing his shirts and exhibiting the wounds.

There were a series of horizontal welts across the back extending from the shoulders to the hips. The welts were about an inch wide. The blood beneath the skin where the welts appeared was discolored. Similar welts extended across the breadth of Higlin's chest.

Higlin also complained of a severe pain in the groin, which, he said, was caused by a kick administered by one of the detectives. There was no mark on that part of his body, but he appeared to be suffering pain.

O'Brien said he intended to have photographs of the welts taken and would use them in the defense at Higlin's trial. Higlin did not state in so many words that he had repudiated his confession.

EDITORS GIVE VIEWS ON WHAT IS PROPER NEWS

Hearing in Case of Raid on Kansas City Weekly Publication.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 13.—Judge Latshaw resumed the hearing Saturday on the motion by counsel for the Spotlight, a weekly, to quash the search warrant and return property seized in a recent raid on the publication by the Prosecuting Attorney. The Judge announced he would go into the Spotlight case thoroughly. After the testimony of two witnesses the hearing was continued to today.

R. E. Stout, managing editor of the Kansas City Star, testified that, in his opinion, the Spotlight was an indecent newspaper devoted to scandal.

Ralph Ellis, managing editor of the Kansas City Journal, testified that the objectionable articles in the Spotlight were scandalous and that he, as a newspaper man, would not print them or permit them to be printed in his newspaper.

Before announcing adjournment of the hearing, Judge Latshaw addressed the crowd in the courtroom, condemning the publication recently of sordid details of vice. He did not attempt to distinguish between those papers which print crime articles merely as they appear in the news and those papers which build their circulations on pandering to a certain public taste for lewdness and lasciviousness. The court could see no good to be accomplished by stirring the indignation of the people against characters of Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's stamp.

The editors of all the papers in the city were called as expert witnesses. Only two—Stout and Ellis—had testified when court adjourned.

Stout was asked to point out, specifically, language in copies of the Spotlight which was immoral, indecent and scandalous and to define the terms he had applied to the publication. He stated that what he was trying to convey was the general impression created by the paper that it was given chiefly to the publication of stories dealing with scandals or alleged scandals. Then the defense began to counter attack by introducing a copy of Saturday morning's Times published by the owner of the Star containing the report of the proceedings in the Arbuckle case. He was asked if it was not immoral, indecent, lewd and lascivious and admitted that it dealt with a case of that kind, but was not so handled.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

Four centuries have passed since Ponce de Leon sought the Fountain of Youth in America.

Of course, his quest was in vain, but, could he return today, he might fare better,

For, like millions of other seekers after health and happiness, he could visit the CHILDS restaurants,

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

WESTERN UNION RATES TO BE INCREASED OCT. 1

Advance Will Be Approximately 10 Per Cent Over Present Rates.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 26.—The Western Union Telegraph Co. today was granted permission to increase its intrastate rates on commercial telegrams and money transfers 20 per cent over the rates effective prior to April 1, 1919, and to increase its day press rates one-third and night press rates one-sixth of the increase rate applicable to commercial messages under the provisions of an order issued by the State Public Service Commission. The increase in rates is approximately 10 per cent over the present rates, a 10 per cent increase having been granted by the commission on Nov. 26, 1919. The company also is granted an increase of 25 per cent for stock and commercial news reports.

The terms of the commission's order are effective Oct. 1 for a period of 13 months, after which time the rates effected under the order cease and return to the former rate unless otherwise ordered by the commission.

Testimony presented by the Western Union Co. at the commission's hearing held on Jan. 31, 1921, shows that the company realized a deficit on its Missouri intrastate business during 1920 of $27,376, or 10 per cent of the intrastate gross receipts.

The company further testified that Missouri is one of only three states in the country that has not granted the continuation of the 20 per cent intrastate increase established by the Federal Government. The company presented evidence to show that it had not increased its Missouri intrastate rates for a period of 35 years prior to April 1, 1919, although the increase in the cost of materials necessary for its intrastate business during the past 10 years ranged from 178 to 242 per cent and labor costs more than 100 per cent.

FEDERAL AMENDMENT GIVING EQUAL RIGHTS IN WOMEN'S PLAN

"Bill of Rights" Offered by Woman's Party Would Make Women Eligible for All Offices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—A woman's "bill of rights" proposed for enactment by the Federal and all state Governments to remove all legal discriminations against women, was outlined yesterday in a statement by the National Woman's party.

The program includes a new constitutional amendment declaring that "no political, civil or legal disabilities or inequalities on account of sex, or on account of marriage," shall prevail, together with a bill to give women the same rights, privileges and immunities as men.

It was announced that Senator Curtis, Republican, of Kansas, and Representative Fess, Republican, of Ohio, would introduce the new proposed constitutional amendment in Congress Oct. 1, and that copies of the new bill had been sent to all state chairmen of the Woman's party, except Wisconsin, which already has enacted the law.

Women would have the right, upon marriage, to choose their names and have equal voice in custody of their children, legitimate or illegitimate, under the proposed new bill of the women's organization.

Other legal rights for women proposed include: Suffrage, eligibility for all offices, freedom of contract, choice of domicile, residence or name, jury service, acquisition and control of property, control of labor and earnings, eligibility for fiduciary positions, equality in grounds for divorce and, penalties for sex offenses.

All common law disabilities of women would be abrogated under the legislation.

Gunman's Trials Cost $50,000.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The seven trials of Eugene Geary, Chicago gunman, found insane Friday after he had been sentenced to hang for the murder of a saloon keeper, cost the State $50,000, officials announced today. The estimate included $11.80 for rope never used to hang him. "Board and room" at the county jail for over a year was not considered. Geary was previously tried on a murder charge and acquitted.

STARTLING DANCING IN "UP IN THE CLOUDS"

One Man Appears in Gold Paint and a Classical Number Is Done With Acrobatics.

"Up in the Clouds," which came to the Shubert-Jefferson Theater last night after a long summer run in Chicago, is a large production, marked by excellent dancing, pleasing singing, hilarious comedy and several striking scenic effects. Will B. Johnstone uses the aftermath of war and the moving picture business for the story. The music is by Tom Johnstone.

J. Herbert Blake, an unscrupulous moving picture director is using the Long Island home of Curtis Dawson, a captain of industry, to make a picture in which society folks appear. Archie Dawson, a young idealist who served in France as a Lieutenant, is always "up in the clouds," and when Jean Jones, a girl from Missouri (Fayette, Howard County), arrives to appear in the picture, after having graduated from a school in which Blake is interested, Archie falls in love with her and conceives the idea of producing a picture on Americanism, with Jean as the star. The effort to overcome his father's opposition involves amusing situations, but the parent eventually goes into the scheme after Jean is discarded and a known star is engaged. With success comes the revelation that the star is none other than Jean, who originally came on to the scene with the idea of exposing the villain, Blake.

The story affords opportunity to stage several pretty scenes and dances. Melissa Ten Eyck and Max Weily do some sensational classical dancing, that involves striking acrobatics, and Miss Ten Eyck appears in an Oriental scene in which, aside from a filmy skirt, her clothing consists largely of beads. Louise Brunell gives a startling toe dance, and Arthur Corey won much applause with a dance in which his body is covered with gold paint.

Good Individual Work.

Patricia O'Hearn, as Jean Jones, was very girlish, with long black curls, and danced and sang well, with Hal Van Rensselaer as the young idealist. Skeet Gallagher, as the camera man with the movie troupe; Mark Smith, as an heir to millions, interested in the movie adventure, and Gertrude O'Connor, a faded society bud, furnish the comedy. Gallagher is a spry young man, whose antics with Miss O'Connor, while a bit coarse at times, pleased the audience. Kitty Arthur, as Gypsy Venus, who opens a safe so that a youth may rob his own bank of his millions, wears a striking costume in a dance before the camera. William N. Bailey is sartorially excellent as the movie director, and Arthur Cunningham is well cast as the captain of industry.

The chorus is well costumed, and introdces stockings rolled below the knees. The fourth scene of the second act, with which the show closes, is a beautiful set, giving an allegorical vision of Archie's dream.

Pershing Visits Old Headquarters.

CHAUMONT, France, Sept. 26.—Gen. John J. Pershing yesterday visited this town, his headquarters during the World War, and received an enthusiastic welcome. The city was decorated in honor of the American commander.

URBAN LEAGUE TO GIVE PLAY

Negroes Need $15,000 for Care of Needy Families.

"Broken Bars," a modern morality play by the dramatic club of the Urban League of the St. Louis Provident Association, will be presented by St. Louis negroes at the Odeon Friday evening for the furtherance of the league's charitable work among negro families.

The characters of the play represent fashion, wealth, sorrow, sin, temptation, folly, charity, [illegible] etc., and the theme depicts [illegible] legerically. The stage direction is in charge of Mrs. Valerie Sheridan of the Morse School of Expression, and Mrs. N. A. McMillan of 28 Portland place, member of the board of directors of the Provident Association, is sponsoring the production. The league needs $15,000 more to meet the needs of needy negro families until the end of the present fiscal year, Oct. 31, and the proceeds of the play will be used to swell this fund.

Woman Injured in Fall.

Mrs. Margaret Solin, 26 years old, of the North and South road, St. Louis County, in company with her husband, William, stepped into the Manchester Cafe, 4592 Manchester Avenue, last night to use the telephone when their automobile became disabled. She opened a door leading to the basement, mistaking it for the telephone both, and fell 15 feet into the cellar. At the city hospital it was said she had suffered a fractured skull.

FURNACES differ as much as people, and we welcome a comparison of the Cahill with other pipeless furnaces. The "insides" of a furnace are what count, and that is where the Cahill excels. The casting are unusually heavy, unusually thick and unusually well fitted and finished. This means that heat is retained longer in a Cahill furnace, that the radiation of heat is greater, less fuel is used, less attention is required, and that cracking and breaking of the vital parts is eliminated. The Cahill castings guarantee greater durability, economy and convenience.

Cahill Pipeless Furnaces

The Cahill Furnace is the result of 40 years manufacturing experience, and embodies the same manufacturing ideals which have given to Cahill Grates and Fireplace Fixtures, an enviable reputation for quality and dependability.

"BROADWAY WHIRL" IS SWIFT AND MIRTHFUL

Principals and Chorus Maintain Lively Pace in Revue at American.

"Whirl" rhymes with "girl"—and the girls in "The Broadway Whirl" are the kind who are not afraid to come down into the aisles for inspection — but "The Broadway Whirl," which is at the American Theater this week, is not just a girl show. Comedy ran about 60 per cent and the girls, music and scenic settings about 40 per cent, in constituting the success which the "Whirl" scored with its first-night audience.

Richard Carle, dependable fun-maker, started the laughs with his first appearance as a head waiter and hip-pocket inspector. Charles Winninger appeared a moment later as a diner, trying vainly to persuade his companion, a young woman of expensive tastes, to order beans. From that time, through the whole evening, it was a close contest between these two comedians for the laughs, some of which they won jointly and others of which Blanche Ring assisted them in obtaining.

When Carle and Winninger set up tables at opposite ends of the stage, one as a Government passport clerk and the other as an income tax collector, the effect was that of a two-ring circus. The speeches were timed to fit into each other, but one who didn't watch both sides would lose some good bits of by-play.

Some of the Quips.

"What was your father's nationality, and how many times?" demanded Carle, at his passport desk. "How many times?" echoed the applicant. "Not necessarily," said Carle severely. While, over at his income tax table, Winninger was correcting a man who had said that he paid a luxury tax on his wife. "A wife isn't a luxury," he informed the taxpayer, "she's an item of depreciation."

Miss Ring, in her first appearance, protests against reformers who would take away the morning after without giving us the night before. She appeared as the pivot between Winniger and Carle in a domestic triangle situation, where the wife's extravagances causes her husband to hire a professional worrier to do the worrying for the household. In a movie studio scene, Carle and Winona Winter pose for the camera as the winners of a small-town newspaper popularity contest. This puts Carle in the lead, and Winninger has to use a fiddle and then a trombone, a little later, to catch up with him. Carle and Miss Ring appear in a convulsing operatic scene, and Winninger helps Miss Ring in her first ballad, which is an Irish one. In the second part of the program Miss Ring sang two of her songs of a dozen years ago with good effect, but the audience didn't rise to her invitation for a community sing. Bronchitis is too prevalent, just now, for that sort of thing.

Five Stars, Maybe Seven.

Jay Gould kept busy in the first act as marshal of the chorus, found time to appear later as a passport-seeker and a movie director. Winona Winter was not on the stage quite enough, but she had a ventriloquist act all to herself. The dancing of Maxson and Brown rivaled the work of the five featured stars in its entertaining quality.

Runways, hyphenating the stage to the side isles, were used first by the young persons of the chorus to seek the essential service of getting their dresses buttoned up the back. Later, the same girls came back to manicure the hands of the men in aisle seats. If they had come a third time they might have bobbed the hair of some of the women, in the style which several of the chorus had adopted.

A baby doll scene, in a show window, was the prettiest of the effects of scenery and grouping. Such a window display would stop traffic on Olive street at any hour of the day. A "black-eyed Susan" chorus picture was novel, though artificial. "The Broadway Whirl" was a summer show in New York and bears the date of 1921. The featured performers are the same here as on Broadway.

CONVICTIONS IN ALL OF 42 LIQUOR CASES AT ST. JOSEPH

Jail Sentences in 14 Instances and Fines Aggregating $4700 Imposed by Federal Judge.

The Government obtained conviction in every one of 42 cases of violation of the Federal prohibition law which were tried last week in the Federal Court at St. Joseph. This information was given out today by W. Frank Cunningham, chief prohibition enforcement agent, who recently was transferred here from Kansas City. He attended the trials.

Cunningham said that Federal Judge Van Valkenburgh imposed fines aggregating $4700, and sentenced 14 of the defendants to jail for periods of from 30 days to six months. Five of the defendants sent to jail were first offenders, one of whom was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment in addition to being fined. The remaining nine jail sentences were against second offenders and ranged from three to six months.

ANSWER TO SMALL'S PETITION

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 26.—State's Attorney Mortimer defends the integrity of Sangamon County citizenry in his answer today to Gov. Small's petition for a change of venue from the county for trial on charges of embezzlement.

Supported by 2000 affidavits, Mortimer's answer, filed in the Circuit Court, denies the contention of Gov. Small and his co-defendant, Vernon Curtis, Grand Park banker, that they could not get fair and impartial trials here.

The New Way to End Corns

The Scientific Method
Easy, Gentle, Quick and Sure

A famous chemist, some years ago, discovered a way to end corns. A surgical dressing house of world-wide repute adopted and produced it.

Millions of people use this instant relief and quickly rid themselves of throbbing corns.

The method is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. One applies it by a touch. The pain stops instantly, and the whole corn quickly loosens and comes out.

Old, harsh methods are supplanted by it. So with corn pads, so with paring. All such ways are folly.

Try Blue-jay on one corn now and see. You will be delighted.

It Is Easy to Lose an Unsightly Complexion

Have you ever exclaimed as you beheld your complexion in the mirror, "If I only could tear off this old skin!" And do you know you can do that very thing? Not to actually remove the entire skin all of a sudden; that would be too heroic a method, and painful, too. The worn-out cuticle comes off in such tiny particles, and so gradually, it doesn't hurt a bit. Little by little the beautiful complexion underneath comes forth. Marvelous! No matter how muddy, rough, blotchy or freckled your complexion, you can surely discard it by this simple process. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at your druggist's, apply nightly like cold cream, washing it off mornings. The result will surprise and delight you.

Wrinkles can be gotten rid of by an equally simple method. By dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and bathing your face in the solution, every line will completely disappear. First the finer lines, finally even the deep crow's feet.

ARLISS IN "DISRAELI" HAS MASTERFUL ROLE

"At the End of the World" and "The Night Horsemen" Good Melodramatic Films.

Remarkably fine characterization by the star and adequate support by a well-chosen cast are the outstanding features of the picture presentation of "Disraeli" with George Arliss in the leading role at the New Grand Central and West End Lyric Theaters. The play, which was a stage success with the same leading actor, has been transferred to the screen with rare faithfulness. Arliss plays his part in accordance with the best stage traditions, though of necessity he has added some pantomimic gestures and movements to make up for the absence of spoken lines.

The atmosphere of "Disraeli" is Victorian, and to that extent old-fashioned. It deals with an episode in history now almost forgotten and of little present-day significance—the purchase of the Suez Canal by the British for the protection of India. Disraeli is pictured as the dominating genius who was first to see the value of this purchase and used all his power as Prime Minister of England to force the Bank of England to advance the money for it. We are carried back to the time when the fetish of "great and mighty Russia" had not been upset. There are plots, counter plots and intrigues and scheming diplomats and spies are on every hand. For those who like historical drama, fairly exciting at times, but not overburdened with romance, this is good entertainment. Several interesting short features also are on the bill.

"At the End of the World."

Melodramatic and colorful is Betty Compson's latest starring vehicle, "At the End of the World," the feature picture attraction at the Missouri and Kings Theaters. Many of the scenes are laid in Shanghai, China, where the heroine is the daughter of a gambler who has taught her the art of being a moth without getting her wings singed. Here is an opportunity for Miss Compson to show her skill as a "vamp" and she makes the most of the opportunity.

At least three men take her "vamping" seriously. A sailor hopes to marry her, a bank clerk steals for her and a novelist wins her love. Then the girl and the three men are marooned in a lighthouse. The revelation of her fickleness, the fierce rivalry of the men and the girl's intuitive efforts to retain the regard of the one man whom she really loves make an interesting climax. The photography is good and the story, though improbable, is entertaining.

Those who remember Tom Mix's former success, "Untamed," will hail with delight its sequel, "The Night Horsemen," which is the week's feature at the Liberty. Here is a drama of the open country made to order for this hard-riding and quick-shooting star. Again he is Whistling Dan, a most deceiving fellow, seemingly simple and easily imposed upon, but quick as a cat when the time comes to turn the stables. As he has often done, he breaks up a gang of outlaws and rescues and wins a girl in whirlwind fashion. This picture is a rare treat for Mix fans.

The Modern Floor for Modern Homes

PEOPLE of taste and refinement—living in beautiful, modern homes—are today putting their finest rugs on floors of Linoleum.

These linoleum floors are in many instances installed when the house is built. Architects are specifying modern linoleum for all the floors in the home—floors of living-rooms, dining-rooms, libraries, bedrooms, sun porches.

Go into any good store and ask the salesman to show you Armstrong's Linoleum. See what a smooth, solid floor it makes—how comfortable it is under foot. You walk quietly upon it, and you do not slip—nor do your rugs treacherously glide from under your feet.

Plain colors, Jaspé (two-tone) effects, and a variety of distinctive parquetry, inlaid, printed, and other designs, from which you may choose.

Any store will be glad to give you estimates of the cost of Armstrong's Linoleum floors, put down in your home. The modern way is to have your linoleum cemented down over a layer of builders' felt paper. So laid, your floor is always smooth, tight, waterproof.

Interest in Education.

This year the Mexican Govern- t defrayed the expenses of 75 erican teachers to visit Mexico Mexican educational institutions and to take various courses to equip themselves for teaching the Mexican youth in American colleges," Gerard said, "so, you see the Mexican Government is interested in this subject. There are many Mexicans who would attend American colleges had they the means of transportation, and it seems to me this would be a fine opportunity to inculcate ideals that would promote a better understanding of America and Americans when these men enter business in their native country. Understanding America and speaking English, they would naturally turn to this country to trade.

"Only 6 per cent of the Mexicans can read and write, and at present there is but one American-supported school in that country. This is a Presbyterian school with 22 pupils. Here, then, is an opportunity for America to become the intellectual big brother of Mexico. It is the surest way of creating a lasting accord, and, I believe, the only way in which to establish great trade relations.

"President Obregon, a truly great man, has the political situation well in hand now, and he favors such a plan as I have outlined; so much so, indeed, that his Government has already started paying the transportation for Americans who come to Mexico in the interest of reciprocal educational relations."

Honored by Obregon.

A signal honor was accorded to Gerard and Gary the night of Sept. 15 last when they were invited to stand with President Obregon and diplomats from the nations that have recognized the present Mexican Government while he intoned the Bell of the Priest of the Church of Hidalgo, commemorating the hundredth anniversary of Mexican independence.

Mexico is now celebrating the second centennial of its independence in 11 years. The fight for independence was started in 1810, when a priest in the Church of Hidalgo, as a signal for the uprising against Spain, at 11 p. m. of Sept. 15, 1810, intoned the bell, which has since been removed to the national palace to be rung at 11 p. m. Sept. 15 of each year. The tolling of this bell is called the crito, or the call.

In 1910 the centennial of the starting of the uprising against Spain was celebrated, and the victory for Mexico in 1821 is now being observed.

CONDITIONS WORST SINCE ARMISTICE, RELIEF OFFICIAL SAYS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, returned last night from a visit to the famine areas in Southern Russia and the Volga region, where he found conditions worse, he said, than at any time since the armistice. Never until this year had he seen actual starvation during August.

"This year," he stated, "the death wagon has made rounds in August, instead of January, February and March, as in previous years. Hopeless women and children are crowding the market places in the capital of Armenia trying to exchange a secondhand garment for food."

The Near East Relief is now caring for 20,000 orphans, Vickrey said, but the President of the local Government of Alexandropol told him that 20,000 more would perish this winter if they are not cared for. He estimated there was a total of 100,000 such cases in the northeast territory.

RAILROAD QUESTIONS LABOR BOARD'S POWER

Pennsylvania States Right to Deal With Employes Without Intereference.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad system appeared before the United States Railroad Labor Board this morning, presented a letter in which the carrier denied the right of the board to "enter the realm of management" and stated that, in view of the fact it could not discuss certain points the board permitted it to discuss, it would not present any oral argument. The board accepted the letter, presented copies of it to representatives of labor organizations and announced it would consider the contents.

Samuel Rea, president of the railroad, in a letter to the board made public last night, asserted the right of the carrier to "deal with its own employes without the intervention of individuals or organizations whose manifest object is the denial of the fundamental right of employer and employes to deal in the first instance directly with each other respecting wages and working conditions in which they alone are directly interested."

Board Asked to Set Aside Decision.

The company, on Aug. 24, asked the board to set aside its decision calling for a new election of a shop crafts committee to arrange rules and working conditions and requesting a hearing to submit oral evidence. On Sept. 19, the board granted the company's request, but limited the hearing to three points. They are: What employes, not in the active service of the carrier, such as men laid off, furloughed or absent upon leave, shall participate in the election of committees; how the representative capacity of spokesmen of unorganized employes shall be ascertained, and permitting the carrier to offer evidence of the adoption or ratification of its shop craft rules by representatives of the crafts fairly selected by a majority of the employes of that class.

Rea's Letter, in Part.

Rea, in his letter, also says:

"The carrier reminds the board that in its application it asked the board to find in pursuance of the transportation act, that the carrier has the lawful right to establish rules and working conditions in the first instance, either with or without first holding conferences with its employes; and that the contracts respecting rules and working conditions heretofore entered into by the carrier and its employes in the shop crafts are now in full force and effect without further action on the part of the carrier and its employes in the said shop crafts. The board has refused to grant a hearing and to make such finding, and has in all respects, declined to hear the carrier upon the issues of law and fact presented in its said application. It follows, therefore, that there is nothing for the carrier to present in the way of oral evidence on the day fixed by the board, Sept. 24.

"The carrier notes that it is referred by the board to its decision in which the board arrogates to itself the right to ignore the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States determining the respective rights of employers and employes, and decides that 'hitherto unquestioned legal rights' must give way to the board's views of what is just, fair and reasonable as between the parties and the public.

"The carrier cannot accept these views of the board, novel and startling though they may be, and, if followed to their logical conclusion, revolutionary in effect. It does not believe that the transportation act has deprived, or was intended by Congress to deprive, either employers or employes of their constitutional and legal rights as established by the Supreme Court and other courts of the United States. * * *

"The carrier states finally that it has not denied and is not now denying the jurisdiction of the Labor Board to hear and decide such disputes as fall within the purview of the transportation act, but it denies the right of the board to invade the domain of management and to assert jurisdiction over grievances of whatsoever kind and character in connection with the employment, the discipline and the discharge of its employes."

CHINESE REPLY TO JAPAN TO OFFER COUNTER PROPOSALS

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Sept. 26.—The reply to the Japanese Government which the Chinese Foreign Office is preparing, while declining to enter into negotiations under Japan's terms, will contain something in the nature of a counter proposal, according to reliable information. If this is accepted, it might serve as a basis of negotiations.

The outstanding features of the counter proposals are understood to be the turning over of the Kiaochau-Tsinan railway and mining areas to a consortium and the opening up of Tsingtao as an international settlement under Chinese control, the customs being administered like other open ports.

Party Leadership in Congress Giving Way to "Bloc" System

Members of Both Houses Gravitate to Blocs Representing Interest of Those Who Elected Them.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Who is the Republican leader of the Senate? Lodge, of course. It is so stated in the Congressional Directory. But in the real and not the titular sense neither Lodge nor any other person is the leader. The whole theory of congressional leadership is being shot to pieces by the "bloc" system—one of the most significant recent developments in American politics.

There is now an "agricultural bloc," composed of members of both parties. There is forming a "river bloc." There is a "bloc" of Western members who want to stop the Japanese "invasion" of the United States. Though it is not so called, there is an Anti-Saloon League "bloc."

It is easy to foresee, if the present tendency persists, a railroad bloc, a business bloc, Eastern, Northern and Southern blocs, and so on, ad infinitum. In both houses there are members who were elected not because they were Democrats or Republicans, but because of their stand on some one of the many issues—prohibition, union labor, aid to the farmer, immigration and what not—that cut athwart party lines. They were elected by the votes of Democrats and Republicans alike, and in order to keep those votes and stay in Congress, they naturally gravitate to the bloc that represents their major interest.

The call of the bloc becomes more powerful than the call of party. That's why neither Lodge nor anybody else can count surely on a full Republican vote for any measure, no matter how urgently desired by the administration.

A keen British observer, whose detachment enables him to see essential things that those absorbed in the daily routine are apt to overlook, remarked the other day that Boies Penrose and Reed Smoot appeared to him to be the only perfectly immaculate Republicans of the old school remaining in the Senate.

Conditions on the Democratic side, from the partisan point of view, are somewhat better, for there the cohesive force of opposition to the majority is at work. But even this force is likely at any time to give way before the superior power of a bloc, and Jim Reed, of course, follows his own bent always.

On neither side and in neither house does the crack of the party whip possess its old-time potency.

MT. EVEREST EXPEDITION, DELAYED BY BAD WEATHER, EXPLORES CAMP REGION

Col. Bury's Latest Dispatch Tells of Interesting Flora Encountered on Short Trips While Awaiting Opportunity to Advance.

Special Cable Dispatch to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1921.)

LONDON, Sept. 26.

SOME anxiety has been felt for the Mount Everest expedition in view of the fact that the entire country north of Simla suffered in the last few days from a torrential rain, part of the territory being flooded. Aside from the couriers who are bringing Col. Howard Bury's dispatches to Simla for cabling to the United States, the expedition has had no communication with the outside world since July 14, but the real reason for this is not manifest by any information available.

Col. Bury sent a message by the courier bringing the eleventh section of his narrative to Simla that his twelfth article would follow immediately, in which it was hoped he would explain whether the expedition had escaped the discomfitures incident upon the heavy rains. In his eleventh article, sent herewith, Col. Bury confines himself entirely to the beauties of the Kamachu and Arun valleys, as the conditions at the time of writing were not favorable for further exploring.

By COL. HOWARD BURY,

Leader of the Mount Everest Expedition.

Special Cable Dispatch to the Post-Dispatch.

From Kbarta, Tibelk, Aug. 28, via Simla, by Courier, Sept. 26—Owing to the weather being unfavorable for high climbing, Wollaston and myself seized the opportunity to visit the lower valley of the Kamachu. At the end of August we left Kbarta and, after passing through the Valley of Fourteen Lakes, we crossed Chogla at an altitude of 16,000 feet, camping by the side of a lake of deep green color on the far side of the pass. This lake is called Ruddamlamsto, and is looked upon as holy, and to it the people make annual pilgrimages, walking around the lake, burning incense and throwing spices into the waters.

From the lake we made a steep descent of 2000 feet through forests of birch and rhododendrons to Sakideng. This was once a village of considerable size and importance, but pestilence sent by the "local demon" wiped out the inhabitants, and as the demon is still reported active they never will dare to rebuild houses on the ruins of the former village.

Remarkable Burden-Bearers.

Here we were pleasantly situated on a terrace in a juniper woods about 1000 feet above the valley commanding a fine view of Makalu, 27,790 feet high, and only a few miles away. In the summer months considerable trade passes this place, as the Tibetans bring down salt and the Nepalese bring up rice, dyes and vegetables which they barter. The present rate is one measure of salt for two of rice. The Nepalese coolies are sturdy and cheery fellows, thinking nothing of carrying 80 pounds of salt up and down the awful paths.

From Sakisdeng we dropped down steeply to the Adkama River through a wonderful forest of juniper trees. Many of these trees have perfectly straight trunks, branchless for 40 to 50 feet, with a circumference of 18 to 20 feet. Festoons of long gray lichens hung from every tree and every branch was covered with moss and ferns showing the dampness and humidity of the climate. Crested bullfinches flew from tree to tree with homelike calls. We found currants of great size, sour but excellent when stewed. There were wild raspberries, bamboos, birch, willow, sycamore and all sorts of vegetation, flowers and grasses.

In places the tuberous roots had been dug up for food. There were rhododendrons of all sizes, from the large-leafed argentum to the dwarf variety. The inhabitants cut off the large leaves of the rhododendrons and with the help of thin strips of bamboo weave excellent waterproof covers.

The path we now followed was beside the muddy waters of the Kamachu, a great, rushing stream with a large volume of water. For a river of its size it falls more rapidly than any other in the Himalayas. In the last six miles of its course it drops at the rate of 450 feet to the mile. We now entered a zone of great silver firs and Himalayan larch. The former grow to an immense size with trunks from 20 to 25 feet in circumference and form a magnificent forest.

Pest of Leeches Encountered.

Six miles below Sakisdeng we found a fine open space for a camp, but the grass was long, and on having cut we found it alive with leeches. Dry bamboos were quickly collected and we burnt over spots on which to pitch tents, but despite this precaution the whole evening was spent in picking off leeches from clothes, hands, necks and even plates of food because they climbed the tent walls and dropped down on us. These leeches hold the record for habitat, being found up to 12,000 feet.

The following day we went down the valley whither the Kamachu joins the Arun, nearly 2000 feet lower. It was wonderful walk, first along slippery logs and muddy water, through pretty glades and forests, but never one yard level, the whole track taking us up or down to avoid obstacles. But it led us through beautiful forests of giant silver firs with hydrangeas 20 feet high, then through woods containing trees 150 feet high, with trunks 25 in girth.

We then encountered forests of oak, large-leaved alders and other deciduous trees with a few blue pines scattered here and there. Semitropical plants and shrubs now began to appear, as we had descended to 7500 feet.

When we entered Arun Valley it was difficult to realize we still were in Tibet, so absolutely different was the climate and so great the contrast in vegetation.

Delicious Cucumbers as Thirst Quenchers.

We now climbed up to the village of Lungdoe, situated on a terrace 12,000 feet above the river and surrounded by crops of millet and maize. Cucumbers and pumpkins were produced for us; the former were delicious and thirst quenching, the day being one of the hottest and quite steamy.

At this point the gorges of the Arun widen sufficiently to allow a few villages to exist before they close again between high cliffs a few miles below. The ridge immediately opposite us was the boundary between Tibet and Nepal. The following day we climbed up a side valley to Poptila, a village 14,000 feet in elevation, which is on the actual boundary. Here we found Chinese characters indicating the demarcation of the Tibet-Nepal frontier. A long, low stone wall across the pass was built many years ago for defensive purposes. There is considerable trade across the pass in salt, rice and dye in the summer time, but five months of the year it is closed by snow. Earlier in the season it must be a great place for wild flowers. There still were blooming white potentilla with a crimson center, and beautiful cream-colored primula with an orange center, also curious blue-white gentians.

Thence we returned to the Kamachu Valley, with its glorious forests which luckily have never been exploitable commercially, so remote and difficult of access is the valley. This is without doubt one of the most beautiful and remarkable valleys to be found anywhere, embracing as it does the colossal, white rock walls of Mount Everest and Makalu, with all their marvelous Alpine scenery of great glaciers and snow slopes descending right down into the midst of green vegetation and including also a wonderful forest of ancient and stately fir trees growing beneath the immense rocky walls hemming in the valley, with every cliff covered with a wealth of flowers and vegetation, the whole forming a spectacle unrivaled at a combination of all of nature's beauties.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Cleveland Indians, with all their war paint on, made their last-ditch fight against the New York Yankees today in the last game of the "little world's series." A defeat for the tribe meant practically a hopeless fight for the American League championship, while a victory would enable the Indians to battle the Yankees down to the last scheduled contest for the honors of the pennant race.

A crowd of some 25,000 saw the battle of the spitballers, which brought Stanley Coveleskie to the mound for Cleveland and Jack Quinn for New York.

FIRST INNING.

CLEVELAND—Jamieson walked. Wamby sacrificed, McNally to Pipp. McNally took Speaker's grounder and threw wild to first and Jamieson scored. Smith got a Texas Leaguer into center, Speaker going to third. Gardner forced Smith, Ward to Peck, Speaker scoring on the play. Sewell was hit by a pitched ball. Gardner scored on Burns' hit to right and on the throw in Sewell went to third and Burns to second. Hoyt went in the box for New York. O'Neill was purposely passed. Coveleskie struck out. THREE RUNS.

NEW YORK—Miller fouled to O'Neill. Sewell threw out Peck. Ruth hit a home run, his fifty-seventh of the season. Pipp flied to Wamby. ONE RUN.

SECOND INNING.

CLEVELAND—Jamieson, Wamby and Speaker fanned. The crowd gave Hoyt a big hand. NO RUNS.

NEW YORK—Ward fanned. McNally walked on four pitched balls. Schang out, Wamby to Burns, Coveleskie took Hoyt's hopper and threw him out. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

FIFTH INNING.

CLEVELAND — Speaker fouled to Schang. Ward threw out Smith. Gardner sent a weak fly to McNally. NO RUNS.

TENNIS OFFICIALS ARE EXPECTED TO CHANGE SCHEDULE NEXT YEAR

The rainy weather of the past few weeks will very likely cause local tennis officials to make changes in next season's schedule of important tournaments. As most of the matches in the various tennis events are played on Saturday and Sunday, rain on those days causes a week's postponement in each case.

It is probable that the tournaments started in June will be finished by the middle of July and those which open in July will terminate by Aug. 10. This would be one way of eliminating the delays due to rain and also the absence of some players from the city.

There is one big disadvantage in tournaments being extended over the scheduled time for play. It is the lack of interest on the part of the players. At the start they are quite anxious for play, but after several weeks or a month they are about to enter the next tournament. This requires them to play in two events at the same time.

During the past season the municipal and district authorities have cooperated with each other in the arranging of dates so that they would not conflict. Quite a number of tennis stars play in events conducted by both associations and the doubling up of tournaments works a hardship on them. It tends to decrease their efficiency in many instances.

FIVE WORLD'S RECORDS AND THREE U. S. MARKS BROKEN IN MEET IN EAST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Eight swimming records, five world's and three American, were set in an open meet in a 25-yard pool at Brighton Beach yesterday. The record performers were Miss Charlotte Boyle, New York, and Norman Ross, Chicago, and relay teams of the Women's Swimming Association of New York.

Miss Boyle set a world's record for 220 yards of 2 minutes 47 2-5 seconds, as compared with the former mark of 2:53 made by Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, in Australia, early this year. The 200-yard mark was passed in 2:22 4-5, four seconds faster than the world's record time made by Miss Boyle here last month.

Ross made three American records, covering 400 meters in 5:14 2-5, two seconds faster than his own record set in 1917; 300 meters in 3:54 4-5, three-fifths of a second better than the former record made by Vollmer of New York in 1916, and 400 yards in 4:49 2-5, which surpassed Vollmer's time of 4:56 1-5 made in 1916.

The relay world's records were 4 minutes and 40 seconds for the 400-yard event, in which the swimmers were Helen Wainwright, Charlotte Boyle, Gertrude Ederle and Ethelda Bleibtrey; 5:53 3-5 for 500 yards, in which Aileen Riggin swam the fifth relay, and 7:11 1-5 for 600 yards, Alice Lord being the last performer.

CITY HANDBALL TITLE TOURNEY TO OPEN OCT. 8

The city championship hand ball tournament in doubles, to be played at Triple A, has been postponed for one week. The tournament will begin Saturday, Oct. 8.

The delay will allow the teams an extra week to get accustomed to the courts and the tennis ball which will be used in place of the hard ball.

There are 17 teams entered and all additional entries must be in not later than Thursday night, Oct. 6.

The American hand ball rules will govern all games except for a few court rules.

Tate Team Wins Again and Lands Municipal Flag

Mercantile League Champions Defeat Hamilton-Browns in Deciding Game, 6-2.

The Tate Motors, pennant winners in the Mercantile League, yesterday captured the Municipal Baseball Association championship, defeating the Hamilton-Browns, Independent League, 6—2, for the second time. The Tates by their victory gained the right to play the Memphis and Omaha teams here next Saturday and Sunday and also make a trip to Memphis, Oct. 7—8.

"Minnie" Hardin's pitching was the chief factor in gaining the championship for the Mercantile leaguers. He hurled Saturday's game and yielded seven hits, while he fanned nine. Yesterday he came back with a five-hit contest and fanned six batters. In the 18 innings the Hamilton Browns were able to score only five runs off 12 hits against the Tate twirler.

For seven innings yesterday, the game was a hurling duel between Hardin and Wilmus. The Hamilton-Browns scored in the fifth, on two errors, a sacrifice and single. The Tates went ahead in the seventh, when an error, Donohue's triple and a wild throw by Kruse netted two tallies.

Rally in Ninth Wins.

However, the new champions put on a storm in the ninth, when they drove Wilmus and his successor Dessau off the hill, scoring four runs. In the final half, two hits and a pass gave the Browns their final tally.

TENNIS STARS ENTER WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

William H. Bierman, the local junior tennis champion, is a freshman at Washington University. He returned last week from his Eastern trip where he played in the national junior event and also witnessed a number of matches in the various championships. Bierman will very likely make the tennis team next year.

Harry Fassett, another junior player, also entered the university this week. He attended Yeatman High School and will no doubt try for the team next year. Arthur Niemieller, another Yeatman star, is attending Washington. He lost to Charlie Barnes in the team tryout last spring, but should be a good substitute for the present quartet of players, namely, Wray Brown, Val Satterfield, Karl Kamman and Barnes.

SERIES OF EXHIBITION NET MATCHES BOOKED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A series of tennis matches to be played in the various cities this fall, bringing into action several of the best-known players in the country, including William T. The tentative program calls for contests at Forest Hills, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Hartford, Rochester and other places to be announced later.

Take Stock of Your Game.

THE change in the season from summer to fall makes this a good time to take stock of golfing strength and weaknesses—especially weaknesses. This is the season when one has more patience to correct faults, because he feels better and therefore is better. Take a day off and play alone—or with the services of a professional. Start with your stance on the tee and make sure that your grip, swing, follow through, wrist and body action are up to your best standard. Follow the same process with each of the different clubs in an entire round.

If you are playing alone make pencil notes of the habits you want to correct. Writing down on paper the points you wish to remember and correct stamps them in the memory in a way nothing else can do. In my own practice work I keep a diary and have found it invaluable in keeping me checked up in little mannerisms and habits I wish to change. If you find yourself "pressing" make a note of it. And the next time you are trying for distance you will unconsciously be on guard against this fault. If you find you have a desire to use the wrong club merely because you have faith in it, write it down. Then go to your bag and take out the proper club.

No player can afford to tamper with the proved principles of golf. You may temporarily get better results with another club, but by always using the one the situation calls for you will in the long run play a much better game.

Watch particularly your mental habits and see if irritation over a poor shot is causing you to tighten your muscles when they should be relaxed. If your mental [illegible] aren't right your physical [illegible] can't be. If your mind is [illegible] or you lack confidence, your [illegible] will be jerky, or wavering, [illegible] as successful golf is very [illegible] a question of relaxation, [illegible] and repose.

These are the "readin', [illegible] and 'rithmetic" of golf. A [illegible] ful study of your play now [illegible] pay big dividends in the [illegible] low golf scores. Try it on [illegible] try it out alone, or with a [illegible] sional.

This Is the Time, Too.

The next 12 weeks are [illegible] most delightful seasons in the [illegible] of golf. The weather is just [illegible] for invigorating play, and I [illegible] ture a prediction that every [illegible] who has been keeping a [illegible] his scores this year will find [illegible] self holing out in fewer [illegible] during the Indian summer of [illegible] than at any other time during the [illegible] year. September, October [illegible] November ought to know a [illegible] er's score anywhere near [illegible] strokes.

Questions and Answers.

QUESTION—Can you [illegible] anything that will help [illegible] duffer who is continually [illegible] to knock the cover off the [illegible] The minute I step thinking about this fault I am at it again.

ANSWER—You have [illegible] remedy yourself. You have [illegible] ply to keep this fault in [illegible] til you have established [illegible] of playing properly. Realize that when you swing [illegible] there is every chance that you [illegible] top the ball or slice it. The [illegible] you might gain in extra [illegible] is more than offset by the [illegible] of losing direction or [illegible] ball entirely.

First Title Game Of Football Year Set for Saturday

Chicago and Northwestern Meet in Opening Contest for "Big Ten" Honors.

By John E. Wray.

The second phase of the 1921 football campaign will be reached next Saturday, when the various university teams will seriously take the field. Preliminary scrimmages will have given way to hard work, during this week, and the various elevens will have assumed definite form by the coming Saturday.

Few championship contests are scheduled Saturday, but all the major varsities of the country will be in action, some of them for the first time. This is especially true of the Big Ten Western Conference and the Missouri Valley teams, all of which have practice games scheduled—with two exceptions.

In the Big Ten, Chicago and Northwestern will be playing a championship contest, the first of the season. Chicago is facing an early intersectional game with Princeton and Stagg's machine is probably much further advanced than Northwestern's, which Saturday's suffered defeat at the hands of a minor college, Beloit.

In the East the big game of the day will undoubtedly be the clash between Lafayette and Pittsburg universities. Pitt has been a title factor for several seasons, while Lafayette, although not strictly of the first flight, is able to give trouble to the major universities. This early in the year there is no certainty as to the results of such contests.

Following are the more important games scheduled:

LOCAL.

Washington University vs. Missouri School of Mines.

St. Louis University vs. Kansas City University.

ELSEWHERE.

Chicago vs. Northwestern, at Chicago.

Pittsburg vs. Lafayette at Eastonburg.

Harvard vs. Holy Cross, at Cambridge.

Yale vs. University of Vermont, at New Haven.

Princeton vs. Swarthmore, at Princeton.

West Point vs. New Hampshire and Springfield Training School (a doubleheader).

Missouri vs. Oklahoma Aggies.

Harvard appears to have more trouble on its hands than either of its "Big Three" rivals, as Holy Cross almost always has a strong team. Last year the Crimson was given the scare of its life by the Catholic eleven and only kept its reputation clean by a good boot from the field, final score, 3—0. That was the Crimson's first game, and this year Harvard took care to get a good workout under its belt before taking on such sturdy opposition.

Swarthmore an Unknown Factor.

Swarthmore sometimes turns out a rattling good eleven and may shake up the broken Princeton machine of last season.

The Valley Conference teams all have easy practice games except for Washington and Missouri which appear to have picked a couple of tartars. Both valley teams will win undoubtedly; but the Okla Aggies at times have extremely strong teams in the field. Rolla is reported to have a better eleven than ueual this season.

The local interscholastic season will reach its first praceice-game stage, this week, when all local teams will play workout games with district rivals.

COUGHLIN AND LAYTON WIN PLACE AND TIME PRIZES IN CYCLE MEET

J. Coughlin and E. J. Layton, junior members of the St. Louis Cycling Club, were the winners in the club's annual 14-mile road race, for members only, held yesterday morning over the Olive Street road from the Creve Coeur Lake car crossing to Hilltown.

Coughlin, with a five-minute handicap, was the first rider to finish, but to Layton, who covered the 14 miles in 35 minutes and 48 seconds, goes the honor for the best time. Considering the condition of the course and a strong wind, which he faced all the way, Layton's time for this distance was excellent. A. F. Dietrich and Thomas E. Martin took the second and third time prize. There were 23 entries.

UNIVERSITY CITY NET TOURNEY OPENS TODAY

The annual tennis tournament for the championship of the University City High School will open on the three courts of the school this afternoon. Coach Roberts has a total of 18 entries. Forest Stuckman is the present singles champion and with Bert Hopkins won the doubles last season. Stuckman is not in school this year, and Hopkins is favored to win first honors in the singles.

George Harrington is another good singles player and may reach the final round. Fred Weekley and Hamilton Phillips may cause some good close competition for Harrington and Hopkins. Doubles will be included also, but the teams have not been announced.

WEHRLE WINS ST. CLAIR TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

W. A. Wehrle of Belleville won the singles championship of St. Clair County yesterday by defeating William C. Adair of East St. Louis in the final round. The match required five sets and was played on the courts of the East St. Louis Y. M. C. A. Adair surprised by forcing Wehrle to such a close score, which was 5—7, 6—4, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4.

The Wehrle brothers won the doubles title without difficulty. There was a great amount of interest in the St. Clair event, which was conducted by the East St. Louis Tennis Association. Plans for additional events next season will be made at the next meeting of the association.

Kingshighway Net Event.

Play in the annual cup tournament of the King's Highway Tennis Association has reached the semi-final round in the singles. John McCarthy will oppose Charles Sauselle in one semi-final, while Clifford Beutel will meet Henry Eichmeier in the other. The doubles is still in the second round. The regular monthly meeting of the King's highway association will be held Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at Swedish Hall, King's highway near Manchester. All members are requested to be present to discuss matters of importance.

For the Critical Smoker

NOT for the man who thinks all cigars are alike—just so many minutes of blue smoke. No! by George! But for the critical smoker.

El Producto is made for the man who has educated his taste to appreciate a really good cigar when he meets it. For the man who has a knowing sort of eye and nose and tongue. In other words—for the critical smoker.

We've gone to the expense of buying the best Havana old Cuba grows and the finest of flawless shade-grown wrapper leaf. We've spent time and money perfecting a blend that has never been copied and never can be. All just to make a distinctive cigar for that same critical smoker.

And El Producto is distinctive—we'll say that for it. And if that El Producto blend hits you right—you won't have any trouble finding your favorite size and shape in El Producto. There are ten sizes to select from.

What say you, Mr. Critical Smoker?

STOCK MARKET IS IRREGULAR; TRADE LIMITED

Speculative Sentiment Uncertain With European News Somewhat Unfavorable — New Low on German Mark.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Speculative sentiment was uncertain today and with the European news somewhat unfavorable. Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet with a tendency toward reaction. Rails at one time displayed some firmness, but during the last hour S prices were shaded over the entire list, but with no great amount of activity. Toward the close the rails were fractionally lower, and while some irregularity existed among industrials, the more active stocks showed losses ranging from fractions to as much as 2 points. Call money was at 5 per cent throughout.

"In the cotton market the effect of a sharp rise at Liverpool was offset by a private crop estimate placing the condition at 43 per cent, which is a per cent or two higher than some recent reports have suggested. The December future opened firm and advanced to 20.39 cents for a net gain of 32 points. A subsequent reaction, however, entirely wiped out the benefits of this rally, but the price recovered slightly toward the close to 20.07 cents. Wheat was weak throughout. Export demand was slow and the foreign news was considered unfavorable, while at the same time the market was impressed by another sizeable increase in the visible supply. These considerations resulted in a more bearish sentiment, despite acknowledged crop damage in the Northwest. December closed a cent and a half lower at $1.24½.

New Low on German Mark.

"Among the European exchanges the feature was a sharp decline in German marks to another new low record. A striking absence of buyers carried the quotation off 6 points to 0.86¼ cents. While opinion differed as to the cause of the decline, some attributing it to an increased German demand for dollars for commercial purposes and some maintaining that this demand was associated with reparation obligations, the occurrence is consistent with the known facts. Continued inflation cannot but depreciate marks further, while the growing doubt as to Germany's ability to meet the rest of the reparations program naturally discourages speculative buying. The other European exchanges were irregular and rather quiet. Sterling went as high as $3.73⅝ and then reacted to $3.72¾ for a net loss of ⅝ of a cent, while French francs, after reacting 4 points from the best price of 7.17 cents, were still up 3 points on the day. The exhibitions of strength among the exchanges were furnished by the less developed parts of the world. Thus the price of remittances on China was again higher, Shanghai taels gaining 4½ cents at 42 cents. The South American currencies were also generally higher on rumors of a dollar loan to Argentine. The peso of that country advanced 2⅝ cents to 33¼, while that of Uruguay gained practically the same amount. Quotations on Brazil and China were also noticeably higher."

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The stock market was again very irregular. With a few exceptions it was strong up to the final hour. Then traders working for a reaction were able to make some headway, but such losses as occurred were no more than normal after an advance like last week's.

Railway shares, however, had done most of the discounting of the news in their favor last week.

Pullman Company.

Pullman stock was sold down again following the publication of the report for the year ended July 31. It showed that the company failed to earn its 8 per cent dividend by $3,478,826, the actual amount earned being the equivalent of $5.10 a share. On the other hand this is not a serious draft upon the surplus of $22,678,030 as it stood at the close of the fiscal year 1920, provided, of course, the abnormal conditions under which the company has been operating during the last 12 months pass within a reasonable time.

The Bond Market.

There was no halting today in the remarkable activity at rising prices in the bond market. Numerous new highs for 1921 were made. The market was not only very strong, but also very broad. There were 315 issues a day dealt in on the average last week, and, taking the week as a whole, 504 different bonds appeared at one time or another on the tape. This establishes a record for all time.

The $31,154,000 Pennsylvania Railroad equipment certificates offered this morning were all taken within the course of the day. These certificates were put out on a 5.80 per cent basis. It was also said by representatives of the syndicate handling the $26,112,000 issue of equipment notes—a joint offering of nine different roads—that an early closing of the books was looked for.

Liberty Bonds continued their advance. In other directions the upward movement was fairly uniform. New highs for the year were reached among the industrials, in Atlas Powder 7½s at 99½, in Western Union 6½s, in American Telephone and Telegraph 6s of 1922, in Morris & Co. 7½s. Armour 7½s and Goodyear 8s. United States Rubber 7½s at 101, were up nearly 3 points from where they sold soon after the report for the first six months of the year appeared. American Smelting 5s, helped by the strength in the metal stocks, gained half a point and Adams Express 4s were also in demand. Among the railway bonds to make new highs were New York Central 7s, the debenture 6s and the debenture 4s of 1934, St. Louis & San Francisco 6s series C, Kansas City Southern 5s, Illinois Central 5½s, Union Pacific 6s and Chicago Union Station 6½s, the last named up a point to 107¾. The sudden activity in Vera Cruz & Pacific 4½s continued and these bonds were up again.

United States of Mexico 5s rallied from heavy realizing sales. Kingdom of Denmark 8s made a new high when they struck 104.

TONE UNCERTAIN IN TRADE ON N. Y. CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Although there were periods of strength on the Curb Exchange today, the tone during the greater part of the session was uncertain, due to irregularity which followed selling orders in the market around the high prices on upward movements.

Commission houses had buying orders for a time, but turned to the selling side in the afternoon and were believed to have sold on balance.

Farrell Coal continued one of the features, moving up to another new high record for the present movement. Glen Alden Coal reacted early, but recovered in sympathy with the upturn in Farrell Coal. Southern Coal and Iron was influenced by the announcement of the purchase of the ... house Iron Co.'s properties in the Lehigh district of Pennsylvania.

Mining shares were active, with Boston & Montana the leading issue.

Bonds were moderately active and somewhat higher on the average.

HOG DEMAND IS ACTIVE AND MARKET RULES STEADY

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Sept. 26.—Today's estimated receipts: Cattle ..., calves, 9000; hogs, 6500; sheep, ...; horses and mules, 400.

CATTLE—Under liberal receipts and poor quality, steer trading ruled slow at ... lower values. The market for butcher stuff was slow, but about steady with the close last week. GRAINS TEND LOWER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

Wheat and corn futures closed lower on the Merchants' Exchange today. Oats shaded some. Cash wheat market here was a dragging affair. The visible supply figures showed wheat increased 5,010,000 bushels, corn increased 243,000 bushels and oats increased 631,000 bushels.

An early firmness in wheat soon gave way under anticipated liberal increase in visible, apparent absence early of export business, break in German mark and anticipated increase in Northwest movement when weather conditions there improve. Winnipeg reported cash wheat market heavy. On the other hand, there was a private estimate on the three Canadian provinces under the Government estimate. Receipts in Northwest were under a week ago.

Corn and oats were affected by wheat to an extent.

Local receipts were 150 cars of wheat local and 83 through; 84 cars of corn local and 15 through; 66 cars of oats local and 3 through; 338 tons of hay local and 40 through.

Minneapolis receipts of wheat were 626 cars; Duluth, 168, and Winnipeg, 797.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators today were: Wheat, 2,769,500; corn, 114,524; oats, 752,720.

Stocks in St. Louis private elevators today were: Wheat, 154,085; corn, 24,033; oats, 85,313.

Clearances today were: Wheat, 515,000 bu. Corn, 17,000 bu. Flour, 78,000 bbls. Wheat and flour, 866,000 bu.

Comparative primary receipts were: Wheat, 2,364,000 today, 3,221,000 last week, 2,287,000 last year. Corn, 1,240,000 today, 1,600,000 last week, 902,000 last year. Oats, 1,083,000 today, 1,135,000 last week, 1,086,000 last year.

Comparative primary receipts were: Wheat, 1,300,000 today, 1,362,000 last week, 863,000 last year. Corn, 1,177,000 today, 1,667,000 last week, 283,000 last year. Oats, 646,000 today, 370,000 last week, 452,000 last year.

LOWER TENDENCY TO WHEAT FUTURES IN CHICAGO TRADE

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Wheat prices showed a downward tendency today, influenced more or less by apparent likelihood of a liberal increase of the visible supply total and by seeming absence of export demand. Some notice was taken, too, of a new low record price for German marks. Houses with Northwestern connections led the selling. Initial quotations, which varied from ⅛ decline to a like advance, with December $1.25⅝ to $1.26⅛, and May $1.30 to $1.30⅛, were followed by moderate setbacks all around.

Subsequently bullish crop estimates from Canada were received, but they failed to have much effect. Prices closed unsettled, 1c to 2⅛c lower, with December $1.24⅛c to $1.24⅛, and May $1.28⅛ to $1.28⅝.

Corn and oats held relatively steady. Assertions that corn acreage had been greatly overestimated was something of a factor on the bull side. Corn, after opening ⅛c lower to ⅛@⅛c higher, including December at 52⅛c, held at about the initial range.

Later the corn market sagged with wheat. The close was nervous, ⅛@⅝c to 1⅛c lower; December, 51⅛c.

Oats started unchanged to ⅛c off, December 37⅛c to 37⅛c, and then hardened a little.

Downturns in the value of hogs weakened provisions.

COTTON MARKET IS IRREGULAR AFTER FIRMNESS AT START

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The continued firmness of the Liverpool market, with the increased spot sales reported there, was probably the chief factor on the opening advance of 14 to 23 points in the cotton market here today. Less favorable weather in the South, with reports of rains in central belt sections, was a contributing influence, and there was an active demand which included buying for Liverpool and domestic trade account. The advance met considerable realizing, however, while there was also scattered selling by the South and some local pressure promoted by the irregular ruling of foreign exchange, and a Memphis report making the condition of the crop 43.1 and the indicated yield 6,650,000 bales, or somewhat above the figures published last week. This led to irregularity, with the price of December contracts fluctuating between 20.12c and 20.24c during the early session, compared with 19.98c at the close last week.

Buying by houses with Liverpool connections against sales in the English market to undo old straddles helped to absorb the early offerings. Otherwise there did not appear to be a great deal of support, however, and trading became very quiet later with prices sagging off to 19.98c for December, or back to about the closing figures of last week. Detailed weather reports showed a good many showers or rains in Western and Central belt sections, and more favorable trade reports were received from Fall River, but they failed to stimulate fresh buying and local brokers attributed the bulk of the trading to a reduction of outstanding accounts for over the end-September crop figures.

No fresh features developed during the early afternoon, and the market remained quiet, but generally steady, with December ruling around 20.13c, or about 10 to 15 points net higher.

Cotton futures closed steady: October 19.75c; December, 20.10c; January, 20.12c; March, 19.95c; May, 19.70c.

Spot cotton quiet; middling, 20.25c.

City News in Brief

POLICE ITEMS

MRS. MARIE LOVE, 25 YEARS OLD, of 2625A Franklin avenue, a negress, suffered a fractured skull and left leg and internal injuries at 1 a. m. today when she leaped from a second-floor front window of her home, falling 30 feet to the sidewalk. Mrs. Love told the police she had an argument with her husband, Edward, 45, when she came home after midnight. He struck her, she said, and in getting away from him she jumped from the window. Love was arrested.

LOUIS HUSZAR, 21 YEARS OLD, OF 525 Harris avenue complained to the police yesterday that his automobile had been stolen from Nineteenth and Salisbury streets. Policemen found the car later, abandoned in front of 1918 Garden street. In tracing the license on the car, the police found that it had been issued for a car of smaller make and arrested Huszar. He said the license records were in error and that he had applied for a license for the larger car.

MISS MAY CLAYBAUGH OF 3829 DELMAR boulevard was robbed of a purse valued at $25 and 25 cents by a young man who snatched her handbag as she passed an alley near her home last night.

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE OF FULTON, Mo., has opened headquarters at 702 Pontiac Building, in its campaign for a $50,000 endowment and equipment fund.

"COLLATERAL ADVERTISING" WILL be the subject of an address by Bennett Chapple, director of publicity for the American Rolling Mill Co. of Youngstown, O., at the weekly luncheon of the Advertising Club of St. Louis at Hotel Statler tomorrow noon. The Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has been invited to attend.

Keeping in Step with the Times

IN 1910 the consumption of gasoline in the United States approximated seven hundred and fifty million gallons. In 1920 the consumption of gasoline was well over four billion gallons.

This tremendous increase in demand came with a spectacular suddenness, which strained the resources of the petroluem industry.

To meet it the Burton process was developed in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

While no claim is made that the Burton process is wholly responsible for the increased efficiency of refining practices, the fact remains that without it the tremendous increase of gasoline from crude oil would have been impossible.

In 1910 the average recovery of gasoline from the crudes of the United States was approximately 11 percent; in 1920 this average had been increased to upwards of 30 percent,

While this Company was producing gasoline in sufficient quantities to meet the ever-increasing demand upon its facilities, it also was confronted with the necessity of finding a market for the vast number of products made from that part of the petroleum which could not be converted into gasoline.

New uses for these by-products had to be found or created if gasoline were to be relieved of more than its just share of the cost of refining, thereby keeping the price of this fuel within the reach of all.

It required all the knowledge, experience, skill, resourcefulness, ingenuity, and technical ability which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) could bring into play.

The Company has a just pride in its success in finding added fields of usefulness for old by-products, as well as for having developed new by-products of use and value.

Thus does the faithfulness of a big institution, fortified by science, ability, and a will to be truly useful, function to the advantage of all.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

D. M. W.—A 10-cent piece of 1832 is worth 10c to 20c.

QUINTON.—There are 400 acres in Memorial Park Cemetery.

BOOK LOVER.—Apply to the Traveling Library Department of the Public Library for the information you wish.

MRS. G. W. W.—The best way to eliminate the wild rose bush, which you say is destroying the other flowers, is to chop it off, cutting below the ground so as to destroy the roots.

RESTLESS.—Address the director of recruiting service for the United States Shipping Board, Capt. I. L. Evans, 45 Broadway, New York City, N. Y., regarding merchant marine service.

R. S. C.—The term "sick man of Europe" is used to designate Turkey or the Turkish empire as having chronic financial and political troubles and apparently nearing dissolution. The epithet was first applied by Czar Nicholas in 1853.

OLD TIME AND PRESENT SUBSCRIBER.—The resort bureaus should be able to furnish you with views and booklets on the Ozark Mountains. You should also be able to get such material through the book shops and through the post card publishers.

M. A. U.—Pyrophosphate of soda is recommended for the removal of ink stains. This salt does not injure vegetable fiber and yields colorless compounds with the ferric oxide of the ink. First apply tallow to the ink spot, then wash in a solution of pyrophosphate until both tallow and ink have disappeared.

MISS PAULINE J.—You can clean your fur by the use of corn meal or a dry cleaning powder. Rub the meal or powder well into the fur, let stand awhile, then brush it out thoroughly. The New England Historic and Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass., may trace your ancestry for you.

QUERIOUS DOTE.—When you paid the invoice you debited Accounts Payable with the full amount of the invoice and credited cash with the same amount. You should have debited Accounts Payable with the full amount of the invoice, credited Purchase Discount with your discount and credited cash with the difference. Your Accounts Payable is not affected. Your correcting entry will be to debit cash and credit Purchase Discount.

LETTIE.—Often grease spots on wall paper can be removed by holding a hot flatiron against a piece of blotting paper placed over the spots. If this fails, make a medium thick paste of pipe clay and water, or fuller's earth and water, and apply it carefully, flat upon the oil stain, avoiding all friction. Allow the paste to remain 10 or 12 hours, then carefully remove it with a soft rag. Repeat the process if necessary. This method will not blur or destroy the design of the wall paper, unless it be of the cheapest variety. In the case of a light, delicate paper, the paste should be made of magnesia and benzine.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

SPORTSMAN.—You do not need a license to go hunting if you are only 20.

DAILY READER.—Your second husband is not entitled to the furniture which your first husband gave you unless you have given it to him.

DICK.—Get the owner of the property which you are buying on the installment plan to make the deed over to you, since your wife is now dead.

WORRIED.—If they are described in the deed as man and wife, that is sufficient to make them joint tenants or tenants in the entirety.

A READER.—If payments are not made at the time specified, then you are liable for interest on the deferred payment, whether the contract so provides or not.

OLD SOLDIER.—You are entitled to Missouri bonus to the amount of $10 a month from April, 1917, up to $250, provided you were a citizen of this State when you enlisted.

J. A. M.—In Missouri a girl is of age at 21, in Illinois she is of age at 18. The matter is governed by the place of your residence except as to deeds. In case of a deed for real estate it depends on the state where the land is located.

PETE.—A has not the privilege of canceling the order of goods which have been made ready for shipment. Setting apart the goods for shipment, or entering it on their books constitutes an acknowledgment.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

JOHN B.—We think nothing is better for dry unruly hair than a little vaseline rubbed into the scalp in the morning, with the finger tips.

MIKE S.—We would be more than glad if we could tell you a cure for epilepsy, but we do not know of any. We advise you to stop and consider before marrying.

A SUFFERER.—Barber itch can hardly be self-treated. It is ring worm of the head and is a difficult malady to conquer in as much as it involves the hair shafts and roots. Such a case calls for expert care and treatment.

MRS. R.—The most common condition found from such a description is piles, but there may be another condition causing the trouble. An examination would determine the trouble, anything else would only be a guess.

H. B.—An enlarged heart is of necessity always dangerous, but patients so afflicted do quite well so long as the compensation is not disturbed, in other words, so long as the heart can overcome the handicap. In such a case it would be doubtful if the pain were really indigestion.

MISS BETTY.—In the weather we have been having, a person of your build would naturally suffer as you do. The condition is no doubt due to friction, heat and moisture. Thorough washing every night with any good toilet soap and careful rinsing in clear water should correct it. If not dab on at night, and let dry, zinc oxide and calamine lotion.

VERDNA.—Your action of course was in ignorance of the material you were handling. These tablets are bichloride of mercury and in concentrated form, and the tablets are very corrosive. If you had used the tablet dissolved in 8 to 10 ounces of water, you would not have had any trouble. The disturbance is due to the extension of the inflammation. Use bland oil, such as olive oil or liquid vaseline. The condition will subside in a short time, but at present no doubt the mucous membrane has corroded and is slothing away.

Negress, Found Shot, Dies.

Policemen called to the home of William Lakile, 22 years old, a negro, of 1537 South Second street, at 8 o'clock last night found Mrs. Cora Lakile, 23, the wife, shot through the right side. She was dead when an ambulance reached the city dispensary. Lakile told the police he and his wife were preparing to move when she took a revolver from a dresser drawer. It dropped to the floor, he said, and was discharged accidentally. He was held for the Coroner.

THIRD PLATFORM FOUND AT CAHOKIA MOUNDS

East St. Louis Rotary Club Expected to Make Appropriation to Continue Exploration.

Further digging in the mound selected by Warren K. Moorehead, Phillips Academy archeologist, to initiate his exploration of the Cahokia group in Madison County, Ill., has uncovered a third platform at a point about two feet beneath the level of two other platforms uncovered last week.

These platforms are surfaces baked to a thickness of about three inches and to sufficient hardness to bear the weight of the diggers. The first two were uncovered about 25 feet above the base line of the mound. Moorehead expressed the belief that further digging might establish them as ceremonial or "dance" platforms. The boundaries of any of the three have not yet been reached.

Further digging also has been done on the site of an Indian village, located by William McAdams in 1881, just south of Cahokia or Monk's Mound, the largest of the group of more than 60, and the largest prehistoric work in the world. Digging in the site of the village always has brought forth evidence of the existence at some prehistoric date of a large colony of Mound Builders. Moorehead's party turned up excellent specimens of a flint knife, a pounding stone, which is a circular stone with depressions on either side at the center to permit a firm grip between two fingers for use as moderns use hammers; a three-sided rubbing stone, the three sides being formed by crevices used for rubbing down bow-strings; a portion of a stone hammer, and numerous bones, including one worked into shape for use as a needle. Many fragments of baskets and pottery also were turned up.

The Rotary Club of East St. Louis will hold a meeting Wednesday at Smith's, a station on the interurban electric line near Monk's Mound, at which Moorehead will speak. It is expected that the club will make an appropriation for continuance of the explorations.

PIGEONS MAKE FAST TIME IN WASHINGTON TO NEW YORK RACE

Winner Makes Trip of 204 Miles in 4 Hours, 57 Minutes and 54 Seconds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—In spite of almost stormy weather yesterday, members of the United Home Pigeon Concourse said the birds which were released in Washington yesterday morning for a race to New York made exceptional time. All three of the winning birds were owned by Paterson (N. J.) club members. The first bird in, owned by S. U. Prichard of Clifton, N. J., made the trip of 204.2 miles in 4 hours, 57 minutes, 54 seconds. The basis for computation of records in the race was the number of yards flown in one minue, and Uprichard's bird flew 1205.35 yards per minute.

No. 2 was owned by Robert Crozier. It flew 203.15 miles in 4 hours, 58 minutes and 11 seconds, making an average of 1199.07 yards per minute. The third to finish was owned by James Crozier, a brother of the man who took second place, and flew the same distance in 5 hours, 22 minutes and 53 seconds, making 1184.65 yards per minute.

Fifteen clubs competed in the race, members coming from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. The shortest distance flown was about 175 miles, while the farthest was about 240 miles. There were 225 lofts entered, all of them sending several birds.

CUMBERSOME LEGAL PETITIONS ARE CRITICISED BY COURT

Judge Rutledge Comments on Voluminous Documents Filed by Some Lawyers.

Circuit Judge Rutledge, in a written opinion rendered today, criticised lawyers who make petitions too long, putting unessential allegations into them. He said that, in considering a demurrer to the petition in a stockholders' suit for an accounting of the affairs of the Dix Oil Products Co., he had been obliged to read the petition, 16 typewritten pages long, in order to "glean" the essential matter, which he said could have been told in three pages. He concluded that the petition, though cumbered with unessential matter, did show a cause of action, and so overruled the demurrer.

"It is too easy to dictate," the Judge said, "and it seems [illegible] for some lawyers to limit their dictation to what is essential."

How Teeth Show!

White or dingy—how conspicuous they are

Remove the cloudy film

There is a way to keep teeth whiter, cleaner, safer. Millions now employ it.

The glistening teeth you see everywhere now largely result from this method.

This is to explain that method. To tell you why authorities advise it. Then to offer you a ten-day test and urge that you accept it.

The film discolors

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It is ever-present, ever-forming. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end that film. The tooth brush, used in old ways, leaves much of it intact. So very few have escaped the damage which that film creates.

That film-coat absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Countless facial attractions are marred in that way. Combat that film for a little while and see how your teeth improve.

How teeth are ruined

That film is now known as the cause of most tooth troubles. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

Despite the tooth brush, these troubles have been constantly increasing. Some have become alarming in extent. So dental science has for years been seeking ways to combat that film.

Two effective methods

Two effective methods have been found. Many careful tests have proved them. They have been combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Millions of people who have tried it now employ it daily. Leading dentists everywhere advise its use. In almost every circle, glistening teeth show its visible results.

Other desired results

Pepsodent brings other effects which authorities desire.

It multiplies the salivary flow. That is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is Nature's agent for digesting starch deposits which may otherwise form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's factor for neutralizing acids which cause tooth decay.

These results come from every application. They last for some time. And they give Nature much-needed aid in combating the possible effect of modern starchy diet on teeth.

Tooth pastes based on soap and chalk have the opposite effect. Modern authorities oppose them. So Pepsodent omits these ingredients.

We Give

A 10-Day Tube to All

Send the coupon for a tube of Pepsodent. Watch the effects for ten days. Then let your mirror tell you what this film removal means.

To millions of people this ten-day test has been a revelation. Make it for your own sake—now.

You can see and feel what Pepsodent is doing. A book we send explains every effect. Watch these results, learn the reason for them. Then judge for yourself between the new way and the old.

Smoke discolors film

With men who smoke the film is often conspicuously discolored. They are apt to see the greatest effects from the film removal.

Children need Pepsodent most. Young teeth seem most affected by these film attacks. Dentists advise that Pepsodent be used at least twice daily from the time the first tooth appears.

Watch the change

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. Watch how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Note the other effects, and read in our book what each one means to you.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. Then decide what is best for you and yours. Few things are more important. Cut out the coupon now.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The First Americans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A QUESTION of absorbing interest to the majority of students of American history is this: Whence came the Indians—the American red men? Were they the original inhabitants of this continent, or were they preceded by a people of a superior civilization and perhaps of another race?

There is the possibility, if the paleontological discoveries of Ameghino, South American scientist, are true, that the human race originated, perhaps a million years ago, in the western hemisphere and emigrated, by means of an old land bridge existing in prehistoric times, to Africa.

Fifty years ago, geographers and historians usually classified the human population of the world into five races—the white, yellow, black, red and brown. The histories I studied at school surmised that the Indians may have emigrated to this hemisphere by crossing the ice at Bering Strait, by boat by way of the Aleutian Islands or driven by storms in vessels across the Pacific.

A few years ago a group of savants who were studying the questions involved in the origin of prehistoric peoples in America arrived at the conclusion that the Indians were not of Asiatic origin and that they are probably descendants of the ancient mound builders. That prehistoric race known in American history as the mound builders left no written language, no hieroglyphics for the archeologist to decipher. But the colossal mounds that they left in the Mississippi Valley attest that they were a numerous people. The great Cahokia mound almost rivals the pyramids of Egypt. It is said that there are 10,000 mounds in Ohio. The mounds were constructed of earth, many of them in the shape of animals, serpents and eggs. The labor was accomplished by hand, as the mound builders possessed no domestic beasts of burden. Is it rational to believe that the Indians, who despise manual labor, constructed such immense works?

Some famous American scholars believe that the Indians are descendants of the ancient Egyptians or Carthaginians and arrived in this country by way of the lost continent of Atlantis.

It appears probable that the ancestors of the mound builders were of African or European origin and came to America, perhaps driven in sea-going vessels by adverse winds. The visits of Lief Ericson and other bold Norsemen to our land render this not at all an improbable theory. The mound builders were an agricultural people, much superior to the Indians in civilization. The wonderful buildings and interesting architecture discovered in Yucatan and in other places and antedating the civilization of the Aztecs and Incas must be attributed to this earlier race. At the period of the early settlement of the Mississippi Valley there were legends among the Indians of Tennessee concerning the struggle between the Indians and their predecessors in which the latter were vanquished, almost exterminated, and the remnant driven toward the Southwest. The mound builders were probably not a martial race. Those who were not slain in the wars were amalgamated among the conquerors. Indubitably the civilization of the Aztecs was established upon the ruins of a nobler civilization that preceded it.

A Lasting Luxury.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"IT would be a real luxury to watch a lot of bricklayers and hodcarriers at work," says a Post-Dispatch editorial. Yes, sir, it would. They produce a luxury that will last a century—the "Home, Sweet Home." A BRICKLAYER.

Wet and Dry Cleaners.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

J. C. SMITH, who styles himself "ex-farmer," touched upon an interesting subject in his letter in this column—the price of laundry work. In the face of declining prices of material and labor, the local laundrymen's association still maintains its high peak charges. Nor have the dry cleaners made any reductions, since they raised their prices during the war.

Both launderers and dry cleaners, I believe, have an association here, which fixes the prices which its members shall charge the public for their work. Our Attorney-General might investigate these wet and dry cleaners.

Renter's Question.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Mighty Small.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am an electrician myself and work at the trade daily and think it mighty little of the contractor and the two union men who reported this young fellow who was trying to make an honest living.

WORKER.

A DISGRACEFUL TREATY.

In his speech opposing the German treaty framed under the Knox resolution Senator Borah squarely hit the disgraceful point when he said: "We cannot take the position and maintain it before the world that we will place on France the burden of executing the treaty and then claim all the privileges. It is an intolerable, an indefensible position and I predict we will not maintain it long. We are tied in, completely, to the Versailles treaty. We can never get any benefit from it except as we help to execute it."

This statement of the moral compulsion that rests upon us to undertake the responsibilities and obligations of the treaty when we claim its benefits, and of the gross immorality of our attempt to reap benefits without assuming obligations, ought to be clear to any man of understanding, but Senator Lodge either cannot see the point or is utterly indifferent to it. He not only admits, but boasts, that the treaty "preserves all the rights and interests of the United States under the Versailles treaty." Under it "we secure every advantage that the United States desires to secure and have not been asked to make any concessions that will be embarrassing." We are "left absolutely free in regard to assuming any obligations under the Versailles treaty."

Who would ask us to make concessions and to assume obligations and responsibilities of the Versailles treaty? Certainly Germany would not ask us to execute the treaty and we have ignored our former war associates with whom our representatives framed the treaty. We are free because we are strong enough to do as we please, regardless of our moral obligations and the rights and interests of others.

The making of this treaty is one of the most unscrupulous assertions of the right of might in history and Senator Lodge's speech is a crass and impudent defense of it.

Can we afford to repudiate our moral obligations? Can we who erected the banner of right and justice in the war afford to make brutal self-interest supported by might our rule of conduct? The law of right is inexorable. Its violation brings heavy penalties. The ratification of this treaty, followed by the seizing of its advantages and privileges and the repudiating of its obligations and responsibilities, will mark the fall of the United States in the esteem of mankind. Who will trust us hereafter?

Being already Past Master of Poker and Past Master of Politics, Nat Goldstein yearns for another P. M. to put after his name.

With domestic coal up another 25 cents a ton the family purse is scuttled again.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

The city continues to call to the youth of the country with siren voice, but how tragically it fails to fulfill its dazzling promises is a voluminous story. Further "documents in evidence" are to be found in the Census Bureau's preliminary report on home ownership and occupancy in St. Louis.

There were 190,641 homes in this city in January, 1920, according to the data, of which 44,700, or 23.4 per cent, were owned by those occupying them. The rented homes numbered 143,107, or 75.1 per cent.

A similar report as to rural Missouri, issued by the bureau last March, showed that 180,030 farms were operated by owners, while 75,727, or 40 per cent, Missouri farmers were tenants. As regards ownership, therefore, the farmer has almost a two-to-one advantage over the city resident. Such figures, to be sure, are but a skeletonized version of the facts. They fall far short of presenting the relative merits and opportunities of country and city life, but as an index of probable substance and independence at the end of the journey they are worthy of serious consideration.

They will not get it. Cold census statistics will not avail much to deter the youth of the country from taking the city plunge where a decade of propaganda, beseeching and impassioned, has failed. The reason for that failure is basic. Though it puzzle economists to explain why youth deliberately chooses the hazard in preference to the certainty, it is perfectly plain to that authentic interpreter, the poet. To the youth of the country the city is the symbol of adventure, the castle where the Princess of success is imprisoned. It is the only terra incognita that remains.

Just the same, the census figures reiterate that all that glitters in Urbania isn't gold.

THE CHARMS OF YESTERDAY.

In a few days the west side of Twelfth street, between Market and Olive will be restored to its nearest restorable appearance of 1821, when Missouri became a State. There will be an old frame meeting house, a quaint hotel with a square-pillared portico—undoubtedly the pride of its day—dwelling houses and intervening landscape scenery. Plans for the celebration of a colonial costume ball at which the minuet of treasured memory will be evolved have been widely published.

The scene with its occasion will intrigue the imagination of St. Louisans at least until its freshness fades from memory. Should the celebrant be asked to account for his fascination what would the answer be?

There is in the heart of every wholesome man and woman of today, we believe, a longing for more of the simplicity of yesterday. The complexities of modern life, the swirling congestion, the spread of poverty and unemployment, the discordancy of groups and classes, the suppression and pollution of nature, the mountainous accumulation of wealth with its consequent temptations and its incitement of cupidity, the commercialization of amusements—these and other manifestations of the time, in the eyes of the imagination, clothe virgin America with the attributes of a sinless Eden.

The difference between that day and this, however, is not so much in a curtailment of present opportunity as might superficially be supposed. The simple life of territorial Missouri was not a matter of choice but a matter of preordination. There was no other. Modern complexity places upon our generation, within limitations, a burden of choice—choice in education, occupation, environment and amusement—a burden which too few possess the intelligence to dispose to their advantage.

The wholesomeness of the America of 1821 is attainable to the American of 1921. If its sweet satisfactions are a closed book to the imitators of the vulgar rich and the devotees of the post-midnight saturnalia, it is because these modern Americans, faced with a responsibility of choice, fail to bear up under it.

Rent schedules which force renters to move out of the city can hardly be classed as a talking point for St. Louis.

Ex-Banker Stillman is said to be disposing of his property preparatory to living in Paris. The yacht, Modesty, we understand, will not be purchased by Fatty Arbuckle.

ARTICLE X IN PRACTICE.

A year ago we were being told by men who ought to have known better that, if the United States entered the League of Nations, our boys would be ordered out "to die on distant battlefields" whenever a war occurred anywhere on the face of the earth. That was what the infamous Article X meant.

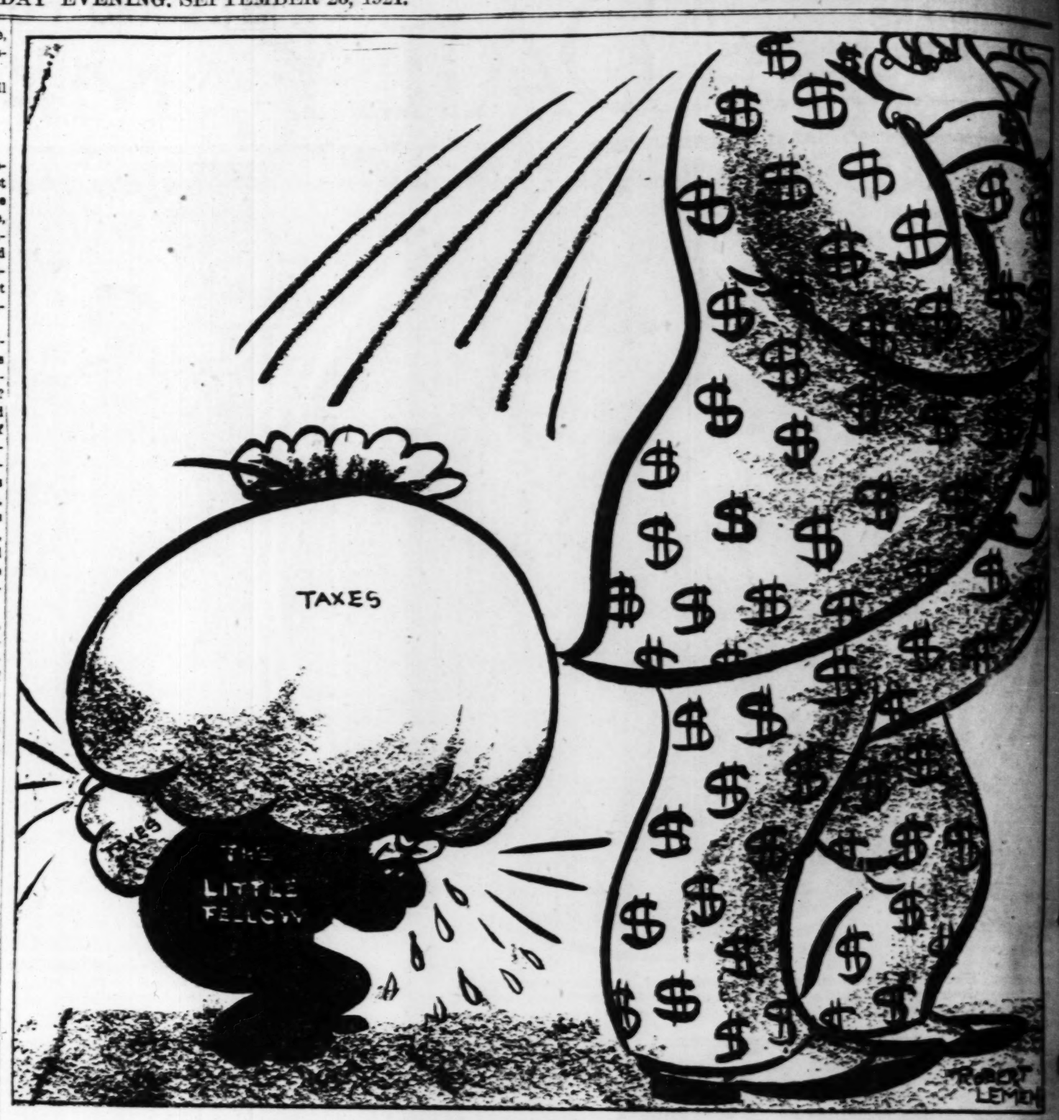

Well, something like a war is going on now between Jugo-Slavia and Albania, but since we refused to join the League of Nations we are safely out of it. But what about the nations in the League? Are they ordering their boys out to die in the Balkans? Of course they are not. That sinister "superstate," the League, has requested several of its members to use their good offices in curbing the aggressor in this instance, and the chances are that this moral pressure is the only force that will have to be applied.

The fact that such moral force is instantly available and that it can be exercised with the sanction and authority of practically all the nations, excepting the United States, is a striking vindication of the principle of the League of Nations, however faulty the League Charter may or may not be. It is just such a demonstration of the League's necessity and ultimate capacity that has inspired the German writer, Helmuth von Gerlach, to predict that Germany, 100 years from now, will hold only one of the world-war names "in grateful remembrance," Woodrow Wilson, who gave a "glamor of eternity" to the Versailles treaty by forcing the League covenant into that hated instrument.

The burglars probably know their business, but why do they keep picking on Kroger stores and bank messengers and never so much as look at the laundries.

THE CUB'S LAMENT.

I'VE been on this paper a month and a half
And never boobed up an assignment.
I've took all the kidding and stood all the gaff
And my temper's kept right in alignment.
I may have misquoted a fellow or two
Or published stuff told confidential,
Or muddled the meaning of some interview,
But nothing that's really essential.
And still it's the smallest assignment for me;
To me goes the lousiest item,
As "Son get the story on Van Twiller's tea"
Or photographs ad infinitum.
I want to write features like big writers do
That reek with high life and romance.
I know I could show them a wrinkle or two—
But they don't give a feller a chance.

They tell me, "Now, sonny, you'll learn to report
If you give us the utmost that's in ya';
Now skin out to Jones's on Washington Court
And see if they've got back from Virginia;
And drop in at Gotrox's on your way back,
He might have the goods on McAuliffe.
Now shuffle before he gets finished his snack
And goes to the links for his golluf."
So I run for the car at a rate fit to kill
And hit for the land of the highbrows;
But Gotrox has just finished guzzling his swill
And is brushin' the milk off his eyebrows.
I can write any story as good as the rest
From murder to Bob Gardner's stance;
I can write editorials good as the best—
But they don't give a feller a chance.

Not many birds sing at this season; but the marsh wren does. In the cool of a September morning one hears the rich little half notes of this singular bird, which is perhaps even smaller than the Virginia wren, gets about in the same lively manner with upturned tail, and shows on the glistening tops of the water plants a tiny white breast. The marsh wren is at its best just now, nor is it rare about any marsh. We have never seen its nest, but it is said that a singular thing about it is the number of false nests around it. Why? Possibly to deceive enemies, which cannot know which nest is occupied; more likely for some better reason we may not guess. If you have not heard the marsh wren at about the time of the autumn equinox, and have not been thrilled by its fluttering note, you have missed something. Sometimes one wonders if all little things do not get more joy out of life than big things. Why are all little things so sprightly and joyous, and why are elephants, men, rhinoceri and the rest all so dour by comparison? You will ask yourself that if you hear and see the marsh wren.

Having seen golf played by people who can play it, one would imagine that few of us would have the courage to resume; yet we are told that all the local golf courses were crowded on yesterday by people eager to imitate Hunter, Evans, Ouimet, Armour and those other Brobdignags of the amateur list, the municipal courses at Forest Park especially being packed with players making personal application of what they had observed. Who can therefore doubt the effect of the tournament upon local golf or believe that from the ranks of all those who watched the matches there is not to come in time an Evans or a Hunter as capable of lifting St. Louis from the unknown as those Titans have lifted Chicago and Deal, England?

Just a Minute has been spending a couple of weeks pretty much in the country, and goodness knows how many readers we have left. However, the school of philosophy is open again, and we shall try to have even more rationalism than has been possible for some time. One thing that is encouraging everybody is the growing remoteness of the war. It was a wise man who said that war and philosophy have nothing in common. The effect of the war far outlasted that gory affair. How we hated one another in those dark years, and how dim became that light of the world which you can learn something about by reading the four gospels! We are going somewhere, but we see the way faintly. It ought to be possible to have a little more illumination now that people who happened to be against us in the war are no different than we are and the men who made them so are mostly dead and deposed. Let us hope that we can be fairer to the Republicans at Washington than they were to the Democrats, realizing that what we are passing through is an economic consequence of the war from which no political party can rescue us. It has not been particularly worth while to have lived through the last seven years. We have spent that time in amazed contemplation of the worse side of ourselves. We know more than most people have known, but we spent seven years in war's terrible laboratory finding it out. Just a Minute has had a more or less quiet rest beyond the sound of any authoritative voice. We don't know what anybody has been saying of late, but it is just as well. What was there to say?

What a fine speech Judge Gary made in Mexico, and what neighborly sentiments were those he expressed! One time there was a man named Zeno. What do you suppose was in their ripe minds while the Judge spoke but the memory of that great sophist of another time?

Looking the Wrong Way With Uncle Dorsey.

(Jack Blanton in Monroe County (Mo.) Appeal.

Uncle Dorsey Shackleford is seeking to array the country against city in the constitutional convention. In view of Uncle Dorsey's life-long opposition to solid roads and his consistent hostility to everything that is new, we wonder what sort of a constitution would be written by a convention he controlled. It probably would contain provisions against any sort of lights except tallow candles, any sort of schools except those like he attended, any sort of roads except the variety nature made or any sort of taxes except those for salaries like men of his type feed upon most of their lives. The fact is, there should be co-operation, understanding and good will between the cities and the balance of the state. One cannot prosper without the other. Both are interested in equal rights and reasonable taxes. Both are concerned about better schools and better roads. Both will suffer from unjust laws or benefit together from good ones. The sensible course for both to pursue is to get together in a spirit of common interest and bring forth a document in which all the good things in the present constitution will be preserved and in which all the undesirable things, if any there be, will be eliminated. This is exactly what will be done, too, if both city and country will elect delegates who are more interested in the public welfare than in fostering sectional distrust.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

MEXICO'S CENTENARY.

From the Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE Republic of Mexico, which celebrates this month the centenary of its independence, can look back on a hundred years of history marked by many false steps, losses and disillusionment, but it is entitled to the consolation embraced in the whimsical saying: The first hundred years are the hardest.

The republic, during its hundred years of existence, has gone through many periods of racking civil strife and has had to contend with two attempts to erect a monarchy. One, that of the Emperor Iturbide, was short lived, but the republican idea had to sustain a severer strain in the sixties, when Louis Napoleon took advantage of the Civil War in this country to back the tragic imperial adventure of Maximilian. Mexico emerged from civil strife and disorder under the firm hand of Diaz only to fall again into something like anarchy when his regime was overthrown. Mexico ends its century of independent existence with its relations to the United States not yet cleared from the tangle in which the period of watchful waiting placed them. But there are hopeful signs that Obregon will prove the man of this hour, as Diaz was of his, and that the successful settlement of pending controversies will pave the way for full recognition by the country of the Government of Mexico, for which nation the United States will heartily wish in the new century that it faces more happiness and prosperity than fell to its lot in the last.

MINING IN WEST VIRGINIA.

From the Baltimore Sun.

A NUMBER of the West Virginia mine operators have protested against the continuance of the Senate inquiry into the industrial conditions in their State during this critical stage, but it is to be hoped that the Kenyon subcommittee will not be swerved from its previously announced plan. American citizens generally will unite in the dictum that a recurrence of the recent disturbance in Logan County ought to be made impossible. They are not inclined to rush to snap judgments, or to indulge in the hysteria which greeted every outcropping of labor trouble in the trying post-armistice period. They are ready now to analyze industrial unrest dispassionately, to search for the truth as distinguished from the nauseating flood of propaganda with which they have been fed, and to find a preventive for the economic waste of strikes and lockouts, which are a blemish to their reputation for efficiency. The best of reasons, however, for the Senate committee to proceed at this time is the fact that the inquiry furnishes Congress with an entering wedge for the consideration of industrial legislation of a comprehensive character. Ever since former President Wilson summoned an industrial conference in the wake of the critical period of the steel strike, interest in this subject has been developing.

CUTTING PUBLIC EXPENSES.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

EVERYBODY talked economy, urged it and scolded about it. But when the Cabinet officials and bureau chiefs sat down to make up their estimate sheets they had a backset. They asked for every dime they thought they could get, possibly, and then added some more. Departments and bureaus get that way. Pride, prestige and a sense of importance all help. But President Harding and Budget Director Dawes are doing a little estimating of their own. They are estimating about how many millions can be lopped and slashed from the estimate sheets of the departments. It looks like a hard year for the departments and bureaus down Washington way, but there is no need for alarm. They will get enough to get along without passing the hat. The cuts made may be deep, but they will not be too deep. With deflation under way, the bureaucrats and department folks ought not balk at the same dose that everybody else is taking. It will not be fatal.

The Daily Burgess Bedtime Story

Boxer and Woof-Woof Go Berrying.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BOXER and Woof-Woof, the twin cubs of Buster and Mrs. Bear, grew so fast that it seemed to Peter Rabbit they had doubled their size every time he saw them. Of course they hadn't, but they had grown very fast. You see, all they had to do was to eat, sleep, play and grow, and they did all four with all their might, which was quite as a healthy young Bears should do.

In the early summer they had found some wild strawberries and a little later there had been some raspberries. They had had a couple of good feasts of these, but not so many that they couldn't have eaten more had there been more to eat. They grumbled a little because they could not get enough.

"Never mind," said Mother Bear. "Pretty soon the blueberries will be ripe, and then you can eat until your stomachs won't hold another berry. So stop your fussing now. If you don't I'll spank you."

That settled it. The twins stopped fussing and grumbling. They knew that Mother Bear meant exactly what she said. They had been spanked more than once, and they were not anxious for another spanking. So they tried to be patient while they waited for the blueberries to get ripe. Each day they wanted to ask Mother Bear if it wasn't time to go for those berries, but decided to wait until the next day. The next day it was the same way.

At last, very early one morning, just as jolly, round, red Mr. Sun was kicking off his rosy blankets for his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, Mother Bear awoke the twins and started off through the Green Forest, bidding them follow right at her heels. It was quite clear that she was bound for some particular place. When Boxer turned aside to look at something he had to run with all his might to catch up.

Once, out of sheer mischief and high spirits, Boxer nipped one of Woof-Woof's heels so that she squealed. But when Mother Bear swung around to see what was going on she saw only two little Bears, apparently intent on keeping up with her. One of them limped a little as if a foot was sore. Mother Bear thought Woof-Woof must have stepped on a thorn.

"Watch your step!" she growled.

Out of the Green Forest across the Old Pasture to the upper end of it, which was really the foot of the Great Mountain, shuffled Mother Bear. By this time the twins were saying all they could do to keep up. Their tongues were hanging out, they were quite out of breath and their legs ached so that it seemed to them they simply must stop to rest. But they didn't dare to. They hadn't the least idea where they were bound or why they were going, and by this time they were wishing with all their might that they were back home in the Green Forest. They were so tired that Woof-Woof began to whimper.

It was just then that Mother Bear stopped and stood up for a look around. When she dropped down to all fours again there was such a satisfied look on her face that the twins knew she had seen something that pleased her. She turned off to one side and the twins followed. In a few minutes they came out of the bushes into an open place. All around the ground seemed to be covered with a carpet of blue.

Mother Bear waved a big paw. "There are the blueberries," said she. "Eat all you want, only don't make yourselves sick."

The twins forgot they were tired and out of breath. With little squeals of delight they began to stuff themselves with blueberries. My, how good they tasted! Mother Bear had kept her promise.

OLD STYLE CHUTNEY

FOR a fine chutney to serve with cold meats soak three-quarters of a pound of mustard seed in two cups of vinegar. Chop six sections of cloves of garlic, two onions, quarter of a pound of dried chillies, one pound of seeded raisins and two and a half dozen tart apples, place the chopped ingredients in a preserving kettle with five cups of vinegar, one and a half pounds of brown sugar and boil slowly for one hour. Cool and mix with the two cups of vinegar and mustard seed. Put in stoneware jars and let stand three months before using.

The House That Stood Back

A Serial in Three Installments

By A. C. ANDREWS.

(Copyright, 1921).

First Installment.

THE silence of the dining room had not been broken since the entrance of the parlor maid and the coffee. With his pad on his knee, happy, absorbed, the house's master, Farrant, the novelist, wrote hard at a last chapter over whose beauty and eloquence the critics would, in due season, wax deservedly enthusiastic.

Barraclough, lying back in his chair, was half way through a third cigaret. On the hall, immediately facing him, hung a calendar of the kind known as "block." The date it showed was the 14th of May. His eyes rested upon it. And the smile that now and then twisted his lips was not a pleasant one.

"I conclude"—he spoke without moving—"I conclude you don't, by any chance, happen to remember the date?"

"Hh?" inquired Farrant, half glancing up. He was naturally a person of brevity.

"The 14th of May," proceeded Barraclough, smoothly. "You had perhaps overlooked it? Or imagined that I had? Not at all. Or that tomorrow is consequently the 15th. Otherwise, my wedding day."

"You didn't want me to remind you, I suppose?" said Farrant.

"Again, not at all—it was quite unnecessary," returned Barraclough levelly. He turned in his chair, laughed. "I wonder if you also recollect a talk we once had? Just before you married Margaret. You suggested that, instead of celebrating the last night of his bachelorhood with the usual flareup, a man who saw his heaven opening would do better to spend it in saying his prayers. Don't know whether you carried out your own program"——

"Yes, I did."

"Ah! Well, results have justified you—I don't dispute it. I was about to say that I recollect cordially agreeing. And—privately—deciding that when my time came, if it did, I would do likewise. Which reveals me as having been a particularly crass idiot!" He stood up with a yawn. "To relapse upon the accepted parlance, I am about to make a night of it."

"Don't you"—admonished Farrant of the eloquent pen and the inelegant tongue—"don't' you get making a dashed ass of yourself!"

"The town," went on Barraclough, unheedingly, "will be painted exceedingly red. To look upon the wine when of a corresponding hue is, I presume, the shortest road to the desired result? We shall see."

"I wish"—growled Farrant uneasily—"I wish Margaret were here, confound you!"

Those who knew him merely well were wont to declare that he cared for but two things, his wife and his work. The few who knew him better were aware that he cared for at least a third thing, which was his friend. Barraclough laughed.

"I have," he said, deliberately, "the highest respect for your wife. If she were here she would probably enter upon expostulations which I should be forced to disregard. Therefore I consider it rather fortunate that she is called out of town. As she may possibly, after tonight, decline by further acquaintance, I should like her to know that your hospitality for the last two months has been perhaps more appreciated than either she or you"——

"Rot!" Farrant rose. "The last two months!" he said bluntly. "I wonder if you realize what you have done for yourself in the last two months? O, I'm not thinking of your losses at cards and so on, though I happen to know they have been frightful. It's—things in general. Good heaven, you don't suppose people don't know? Why, you've not so much as set your foot inside your chambers. Look at the briefs you were getting, and at your age! Why, you'd the ball at your feet." He paused, watching the smile, again far from pleasant, that twitched the other's lips. "O, I might as well hold my tongue, of course! But I can't see you deliberately kick down your whole career and say nothing * * * Look here, if you must go—I can spare the evening—I'll come with you."

Barraclough laughed again.

"I think not," he dissented. "Margaret advised you not to let me out of your sight, I suppose? Yes, I see she did. Fortunately for her—and yourself—you are not an exponent of realism. Consequently you will remain where you are. For myself, I shall get riotously, roaringly, ravingly drunk. What may follow is on the knees of the gods. You will probably be called upon to bail me out, supposing that I am bailable. For the present—goodnight."

Farrant attempted no answer—the man of few words knew when it was futile to use any; he turned away with a shrug. Barraclough, at the door, stopped and glanced back. Then crossed over quickly and held out his hand. As was sometimes the case, he looked suddenly almost boyishly young.

"Thanks, old man," he said quietly. "Good-night."

Farrant nodded and echoed the good-night. Barraclough went out, in a few minutes was strolling leisurely through the warm, dry streets. Leisurely, because the night was still young. And before the morning there were many hours. A sudden thought, idea, presently brought him, with a laugh, to a standstill at a corner. An adjacent flower-girl, observantly on the watch, accosted him. He laughed again, waving away the white rose she extended.

"Unsuitable, my dear," he said seriously. "Red, if you please. The reddest thing in your basket. A match, if possible, for—for the occasion. Ah, yes, thanks—that'll do!"

Turning away with the offered red flower in his buttonhole, he walked now at a pace which told of a settled purpose. Which purpose took him straightway to a certain famous square that is an acknowledged center of the center of things. The house he approached was brilliantly lighted and gay with flowering window boxes; a footman hovered, waiting, near the great cream-and-gold motor that purred by the curb; the doors stood open; there were glimpses of more flowers, more footmen, an immaculate butler, a fluttering French maid.

As he halted another figure appeared, a woman's. She paused for a moment while the maid placed a cloak on her shoulders, then advanced, slowly descending the steps. The cloak was all chiffon and lace and embroideries, transparent and airy as a cloud; through it there showed the curves of a perfect figure, the glitter of jewels on neck and arms, the gleam of a wonderful frock; the light was bright upon piled blond hair, upon the rose and white of a beautiful face; she was of a type that, while hardly past girlhood, blooms into a vivid and superb maturity. Barraclough gave a laugh, advancing. He thrust away the hovering footman, as she reached the car and stood bareheaded with the door held wide.

"It is a fine evening," he said smilingly, and bowed to her. She fell back with caught breath.

"O!" she gasped. "O!" and stared at him; her rose overwashed with the pallor of fright. He repeated the smile—it was very ugly.

"A fine evening," he said again. "An evening to herald a perfect day. Tomorrow should be all that can be desired. You think so?"

"Why—What do you—How—how dare you"—— she stammered, incoherently. And with the disjointed words sprang past into the car. "Go—go away," she panted, and cowered with scared eyes. "I—I"—Farraclough smiled once more.

"You are well content!" he suggested, suavely. "O, I do not doubt it! The diamonds are admirable. And the frock—Paquin, I think? Ah, yes—the touch is inimitable! By the way, my apologies—I once called you worthless. Most unjust! At the present moment you are, incontestably, worth a great deal!"

"This—this is hateful of you! I—I won't be insulted," she cried, shrinking more and trembling. Barraclough, sweeping a bow that in its depth touched mockery, was aware of another figure descending the steps, a man pompous and portly, bald and florid; knew, as he moved away at a pace studiedly slow, that, after a moment's hurried colloquy, he was followed. His stop and turn were so abruptly sharp that the other starter, almost recoiled. And, recovering, burst into speech of agitated bluster, stuttering:

"What—what's the meaning of this, sir?" he demanded. "I—I am"——

"Frightened?" supplied Barraclough, smoothly, smiling.

"Indignant, sir—most indignant! It—it is infamous that you should—I don't know whether you are drunk"——

"Not yet," said Barraclough, more blandly.

"It—it is an outrage, sir! If—if it should occur again I warn you that I shall at once"——

"Go to the devil!" said Barraclough, very pleasantly. His hand on the other's collar swung him about; he laughed and walked on. In a minute the motor passed him; he had a glimpse of a blonde head, of jewels on a white neck, and opposite a face of flushed rage and perturbation. His sauntering stride took him out of the Square, took him through adjacent squares. He paused presently to glance at his watch, from it to the name of the street. Time was getting on. And near was a certain night club, heard of because unsavorily notorious, but never seen. At the back of his mind there had perhaps been some idea of the night club? This turning should be on the way—he went down the turning. A street of flat-faced houses, dull, respectable, silent. And, at certain hours, parts of this vast London, the thronged and throbbing, could seem more utterly deserted, solitary than—

"It is gone! What shall I do? I have dropped, lost it! Ah, little imbecile I am! I cannot go! And there is nowhere else. My faith, what shall I do?" moaned a voice.

It spoke in French. A voice, broken, half-sobbing, bewildered, panic-stricken. And certainly feminine. Barraclough, walking in the roadway, swung round. On the pavement, in the shadow, a dark shape stooped, shook its garments, searched, it seemed wildly, with fresh ejaculations of dismay and distress. He advanced, hesitated, spoke.

"I beg your pardon," he began. "I"—— The figure, girl or woman started up.

"No, no!" she cried. "You must not speak to me, monsieur. I—I do not answer. Go—go on!"

"But you are in trouble—have dropped—lost something?" Barraclough persisted. "Your purse, perhaps? If so"——

"No, no! It does not matter. It is nothing, monsieur. If you please, leave me and go on."

She had shrunk back against the railings, putting out a defensive ungloved hand; from a bangle encircling the slender wrist a little silver heart hung down. A small, slight thing in shabby black, a girl who was almost a child, 16 or 17 perhaps. A delicate oval face beaming like a pearl against dark hair. An extraordinary fine finish in the curve of the cheek, in the lines of nostril and mouth and chin. Dilated black lashed eyes that, as the light of a near lamp caught them, showed a mingling color of violet and green. Barraclough looked at all these—at the little, piteous, trembling, repelling hand. And he moved to stand bareheaded under the lamp.

"Mademoiselle," he said in his difficult, slow French, "I have a sister who is, I think, not much older than you. It may one day chance—who can tell?— that she finds herself in a strange land, like you, in a difficulty like yours. If that should happen I hope there may be also a man to speak to her as I venture to speak to you, to offer her his services as I offer mine to you. I can say no more."

He waited. Of the face the girl's upward gaze searched. Farrant and Margaret, his wife, could have pointed to lines about eyes and mouth, to a stubborn setting of jaw and a certain recklessly hardened air as things that had not been there two months ago. Perhaps, seeing, she failed to read them. Perhaps saw only a face at which women, looking once, had usually looked again. Her scrutiny lasted only a moment. She put out her hand with a diffident gesture.

"I will tell you, monsieur," she said simply.

"That is well. This is your way? We will walk on," said Barraclough. "And now—I was right. You have lost your purse?"

"Yes, monsieur. And I have no more money, not a sou—nothing! But first, if you please, I will explain. I came to England seven, eight months ago, to my brother, Charles. He had lived here several years and taught the languages, our French and Spanish and Italian—he was, O, very clever! But he wrote that he was ill, and wanted someone to care for him; he asked me to come. Our mother—our stepmother—had married again, her new husband had also children—there was no home for me, you understand. So I was glad, very glad, to come to Charles. I nursed him, but he did not get better—the doctor said he had worked too hard. In two months he died, monsieur!"

"And since?" asked Barraclough gently.

Since she had worked, she answered—all Charles' money had gone in his illness. She had tried to teach, but she knew so little, had been taught so little, and could not speak the language. She had tried to sew, but did it "O, so badly!"—people were angry, and the pay so very small; poignantly, unconsciously, she sketched a picture of a frightened child, solitary, shrinking from coming hunger—"there was no home, you understand, monsieur."

Now she had obtained a post with a South African family returning to the Cape, partly as maid, partly as nurse. It was not what Charles would have wished, or her father, but to live one must work—was it not so? They had gone to the port from which the vessel sailed; she was to follow by this night's train. Now, on her way to the station, her luggage already gone, she had missed her purse, had somehow dropped it—lost it—Barraclough met the tragic look, the little tragic gesture, with a reassuring smile.

"That, at least, need not trouble you," he said, cheerfully. "You will do me the honor, mademoiselle, of allowing me to supply what you need. It is too little to be worth thanks. And—yes—if you desire, you shall return it—I will give you my card with my address. Then, at some time in the future, when it is more than easy, you can send it back to me."

CHILD TRAINING AT HOME

CHILD ACTIVITY

By Mary F. Wilcox, Teacher of Manual Training, Westboro, Mass

CHILDREN like to be active. Of course there are things that the child must do whether he likes to or not, but there is much of entertainment and development that he can gain through the activities which he craves.

Training comes through activity. The use of tools may furnish endless opportunities for helpful, happy activity. The remark of one little girl who used to visit me is significant, "I like to come up here, because I can do things."

Because the child does enjoy creating and doing, he learns unconsciously; and how much there is to be learned through the ends of the fingers! Skillful hands, concentration, observation, forethought, judgment, are all developed, and best of all, respect rather than scorn for manual labor is implanted in the child when he is young and impressionable.

In making gifts to children, give them toys or tools with which they can create. Most children cannot have a complete work bench nor join a class in manual training, but any normal child can get hours of helpful, happy activity from the use of such aids as can come within his reach. A hammer, saw, some nails and a few small pieces of wood; paper, scissors, paste, colored crayons or water color paints are all splendid mediums for self-expression. Let the child's work be supervised sufficiently to guide his activity into doing whatever he does well, and for some definite object. Method in activity is of the greatest importance, whereas aimless activity neither entertains the child for any length of time nor does it help him to develop skill and concentration. Let whatever the child makes be something which, from his viewpoint, is worth while.

Not long ago I bought a playtime circus for a boy; it consisted of several sheets with the outlines of different animals. I gave him a box of the best colored crayons, a pair of scissors and some paste. With a little supervision, he cut, put together and colored one animal at a time and then we began a frieze for his room by pasting them on to a strip of neutral tinted paper about 10 inches wide. He was delighted with the occupation. It called for careful execution with scissors, appreciation for shades of color, imagination, and best of all, he felt that he was creating something worth while.

Of course there are children who are not interested in making toys or household objects, but any child should learn to use his hands by having certain regular home duties and responsibilities. Even a small child feels the pleasure of self reliance and self-respect that come from responsibility for some regular duties. A child of three or four can put away and care for his own toys even when it might be easier for his mother to do so. Ownership entails responsibility and it may also develop generosity; for without possessions, how can we share? As soon as a child has a little responsibility placed upon him, he begins to develop self-confidence and self-respect; he becomes an intelligent individual who thinks for himself and feels for other people, who senses and respects the rights of others.

Only as our children are taught to appreciate the feelings and regard the rights of others can the citizens of the future become more humane and lawless inconsideration be relegated to the past.

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT
RIGHT IN YOUR OWN HOME

Today's Exercise, Which Reduces Abdomen, Also a Test to Prove Whether or Not You Are Too Stout.

BY DORIS DOSCHER.

(Copyright, 1921.)

PERHAPS you do not know that you are too stout. The woman who is overweight often is deceived by what her friends tell her and her clothes help to hide her avoirdupois. But there is one sure obesity test, which I advise each of you to try in the privacy of your boudoir or sleeping room. The test is the exercise which I have illustrated for you in today's lesson.

It may be described in a sentence. Try to bend over at the waist and touch the floor with your finger tips while maintaining the knees in a rigid position. If you cannot do this easily you may know that you carry excess baggage of flesh. But if you have practiced faithfully the exercises I have given you your muscles probably will be nimble enough to enable you to pass successfully the simple test.

Although it seems simple, its benefits are manifold. It strengthens the back and the arms. It reduces the fat of the abdomen and has an excellent effect in straightening, strengthening and reducing the thighs and the legs. You can gain an added benefit by swinging from position in illustration to an upright one, with the hands and arms stretched high above the head, and back to position in illustration. This can be repeated for eight counts. Do not be discouraged if you cannot reach the floor at first. You will do it perfectly after living on the proper reducing diet for a few weeks and practicing this and my other exercises.

As I told you when we began this reducing course one advantage of the exercises prescribed is that most of them can be practiced as a part of your daily routine. Thus they no longer remain merely a set of exercises which soon grow monotonous, but turn into graceful, helpful ways of doing your everyday work. This is particularly true of the drill I have given you today.

How many times the busy housewife has to pick up things from the floor as she tidies her home! Whenever she stoops she can bend from the waist, holding her knees rigid—and thus her housework becomes calisthenics for grace and beauty. As we go on with our lessons in reducing I shall show how others can be applied to the tasks of the home.

The application of this exercise to the daily routine can be made with equal benefit by business girls in the many office or shop. I know that many of you feel embarrassed by the awkwardness of your movements from the letters you have written me. A beautiful, graceful, lithe figure is an asset in every walk of life, so try to do this exercise in the morning before you go to business and use it every time you have occasion to pick up anything from the floor during the day. The movement certainly reduces the fat where it is most unbecoming.

It may be very gentlemanly for a man to stoop to pick up your handkerchief, but there is a wonderful feeling of independence when you are able to stoop gracefully to pick up your own when no gallant knight is near.

University women in 10 countries have formed national associations to join the women of Great Britain and America in an international federation.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

MANNERS.

MANNERS are not a question of birth and breeding. They are not even a matter of education.

If you are well disposed toward your fellow human beings, your manners will be good.

If you are ill-disposed toward them, your manners will be bad.

There are college professors, and United States Senators, and society leaders who have very bad manners.

Education, of course, ought to improve the manners. As a matter of fact it usually does.

For education improves the intelligence, and intelligent persons usually know enough to be well mannered.

However, your manners can be good, whether you have been to college or in society or not. If they are not as good as they ought to be, you can make them better.

You can learn to be polite without being servile, to be courteous without being obsequious.

If you respect yourself and respect others, your manners will be what they ought to be.

Little matters of custom, such as rising when ladies come into the room, eating your soup with the spoon moving away from you across the plate and so on can be acquired by imitation.

These are not maners, they are merely the indications of manners.

Manners are your attitude toward others—your interest in their comfort. Sum them up in a word, and you will call them tact.

A vast deal depends upon them. A well-mannered man is far more certain to get a job that is vacant and to keep it after he gets it than an ill-mannered one.

He is certain to enjoy the esteem of his fellow men, and the respect even of his neighbors.

Carlyle was ill-mannered, but he could afford to be; he was a genius.

Yet his bad manners often made him unhappy and uncomfortable.

Be as well-mannered as you can, first for the sake of others, second for your own sake.

Good manners will ease your way through life, and make you not only better satisfied with yourself, but better satisfied with all the world.

RAISIN ROLLS

MIX together one quart flour, one teaspoon salt, three teaspoons baking powder, rub in two teaspoons butter (not melted), one-quarter pound seeded raisins cut fine, mix raisins with dry ingredients evenly, use enough milk to make a fine dough; knead for a moment; divide into pieces size of an egg, shape into long rolls, lay one inch apart on greased bread pan, brush with milk, bake in a very hot oven.

Enterprise goes further

A SACK of Valier's Enterprise Flour goes further than a sack of ordinary flour because of its high gluten content. You can get at least four more loaves to the sack—more than enough to make up for its additional cost made necessary by its high quality.

But its economy is not the only reason why thousands of experienced housewives use Valier's Enterprise Flour. It's a real pleasure to bake with it. You can always count on the results.

Valier's Enterprise Flour is nothing but the white centers of the pick of the hard winter wheat crop. It's the cream of the milling—a perfect all purpose flour.

  If you fancy, in squirrelish delight,
You can keep it all winter in storage
  And have it for dinner some night,
Your instinct is sadly misleading,
  For the paint on the dimple-faced pill
Is certain to make you exceeding—
  Ly ill.

If your purpose is not dietetic,
  If you're dragging it off to your hole
To gratify something esthetic
  That lurks in your little wild soul,
You'll learn that your plans have miscarried,
  For the bloom disappears from the cheek
Of the brightest of golf balls, when buried
  A week.

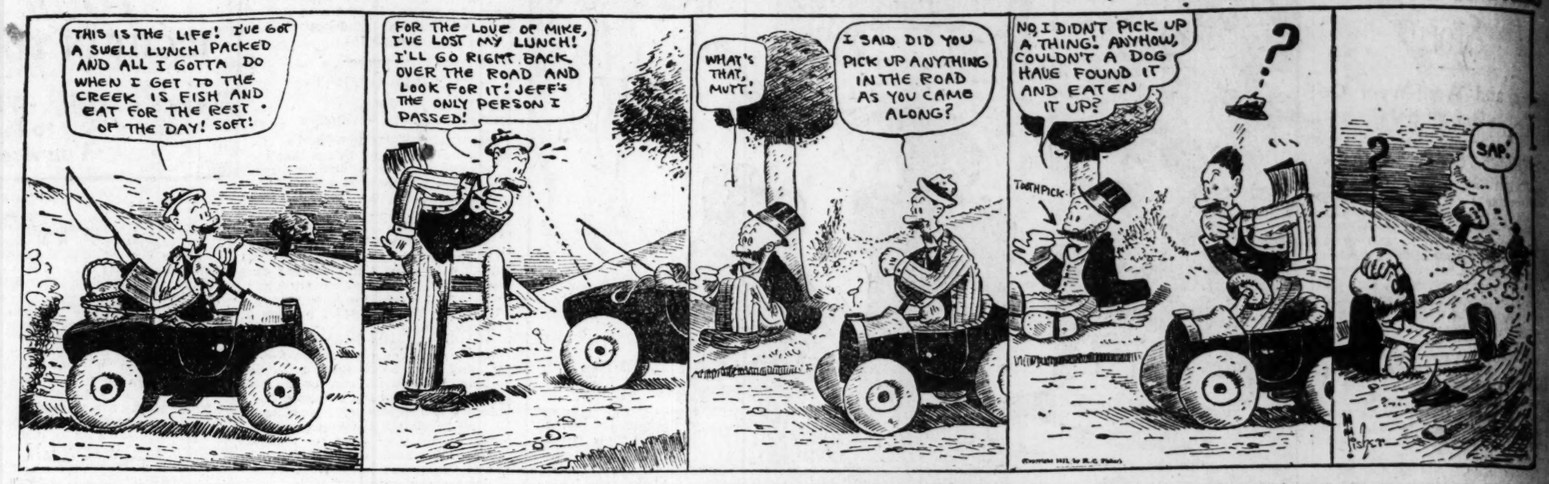

If the fatuous notion you cherish
  That some day you'll master the swing
And even develop a fairish
  Adeptness in swatting the thing,
You are doomed to a swift disillusion,
  Your dreams—so resplendent and fine—
Will be shattered in utter confusion
  Like mine.

So you'd better relinquish your treasure,
  And scuttle away to your den,
It will bring neither profit nor pleasure
  To squirrels, any more than to men.
The sad human beings that dodder
  O'er the course all these autumn days through
You will find are a lot fitter fodder
  For you!

From Bad to Worse.

The two miners had never seen golf played before. They stood watching a fat, unskilled player at work in a bunker. The sand flew up, but the ball remained. Seven agonizing shots had been played. The player stopped for breath, and then made his eighth attempt. The ball was lobbed up, dropped on the green, and rolling gently to the pin, settled in the hole.

Miss Roxley (haughtily): The idea of your proposing to a girl of my class—you should know better.

Gentle Hint.

He: I trust I am not tiring you with my presence.

Interpretation.

His Trade Mark.

"Louise," said mother, "I'm mortified to think that you would allow the Lieutenant to kiss you yesterday when you were riding."

"But, mother, I assure you"—began Louise.

"Don't deny it now," said mother, convincingly. "The mustaches of all the other men were white-frosted."

DAYS OF REAL SPORT—By BRIGGS

They Should.

Mother: Seven and six-pence, I think.

Little Girl: And if they have a divorce do they get the money back?—Punch, London.

The Reason.

First Taxi Driver: There ain't as many people killed now as there used to be, it seems to me.

Second Taxi Driver: No; nearly everybody owns a car, and there ain't enough people to go around.—Wayside Tales.

Liked Dad's Style.

Barber (to child in the chair): Well, my little man, how would you like your hair cut?

Willie (6 years old): Like father's, if you please, with a round hole in the top.
